U.N.—Hijackings

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The president of the worldwide federation of airline pilots said Thursday night the organization would reconsider plans for a strike on the hijacking issue following indications from Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that the U.N. Security Council would meet on the air piracy problem.

The pilot leader, Capt. Ola Forsberg of Finland, said after meeting with Waldheim that "we got the impression that the chances are very good" for a council meeting on hijacking.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations said earlier it would hold a 24-hour worldwide work stoppage next Monday unless effective council action on hijacking was forthcoming.

Forsberg said the federation's five-man governing body would meet in New York Thursday night and Friday to decide whether to go ahead with the strike. He said the reconsideration was scheduled because of information received from Waldheim.

Waldheim met for more than an hour with Forsberg, Capt. James O'Grady of Ireland, vice president of the London-based federation, and Charles Blyth, general secretary of the International Transport Workers Federation, also based in London.

Seven other U.N. officials and about a half-dozen other representatives of Blyth's organization of steward and ground crews also took part in the conference.

Waldheim had an appointment for Friday morning with the head of the International Air Transport Association, representing airline owners, to discuss the same problem.

On his way to see Waldheim, Forsberg said the pilots wanted "some sort of enforcement measures against those that do not fulfill" international aviation agreements for the prosecution or extradition of hijackers.

In a message to Waldheim last week, Forsberg set Friday as the deadline for effective council action against hijacking.

Diplomatic sources said the United States had privately put forward a statement against hijacking for the council to adopt without a meeting if possible but with one if necessary.

Nixon—Arms Pacts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Thursday called for congressional approval before Sept. 1 of the U.S.-Soviet arms control agreements, while asking at the same time for an increase in defense spending.

The President and his national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, briefed about 100 senators and representatives at the White House Thursday on the aspects of the strategic arms limitation agreements signed when the chief executive was in Moscow last month.

The President, in his informal remarks opening the session, said the second round of SALT "will begin, we trust, in October. That means that we can begin in October, provided action is taken... before the first of September."

At the same time, the President said, the United States should go ahead with "defense programs in the offensive area which are not limited by these agreements."

Not to follow up with offensive arms programs, "or worse, for the United States unilaterally to reduce its offensive programs would mean that any incentive that the Soviets had to negotiate the follow-on agreement would be removed," the President said.

Nixon and Kissinger had invited 122 senators and representatives, all members of committees which will handle the preliminary work on the SALT agreements. Most showed up.

The Senate was asked to ratify the treaty signed in Moscow limiting the United States and the Soviet Union to two antiballistic missile sites each. Another part of the agreement, freezing offensive missile weapons systems to their current levels and to completion of programs already under way, is in the form of a five-year executive agreement and requires approval by both houses of Congress.

Although Nixon's proposed Sept. 1 deadline is 2½ months away, Congress will recess twice this summer for political conventions.

Senate leaders are expecting a string of witnesses at Foreign Relations Committee hearings. And the House Foreign Affairs Committee expects a delay in adopting the agreement because of other legislation.

McGovern Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential frontrunner George S. McGovern has decided to step up his efforts at winning the hearts and votes of those his strategists call patriotic middle-Americans.

The South Dakota senator and his advisers came to that conclusion after his poorer-than-expected showing in the June 6 California primary, a top McGovern strategist said Thursday.

He said, as the senator visited a police station in Queens and a Veterans Administration hospital on suburban Long Island, "We need to do more of this type of thing."

"There was poor scheduling in California," he said. "That's what hurt us out there."

McGovern won in California over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, but the winning margin was only 6 per cent, rather than the 20 per cent that early polls had projected.

Object To Treatment Of Blacks Stage Bizarre Tax Protest

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A black businessman angered over the state's treatment of its Negro citizens released the last of four tax agents, he held hostage Thursday and was whisked away in a limousine for a secret meeting with Gov. Winfield Dunn, whom he demanded to see.

The man, who contended he did not owe $167 in back taxes because the state did not adequately care for blacks, released three state tax agents earlier in the day but held the fourth for several hours while arrangements were made for the meeting with Dunn.

The businessman, who operates a cleaning establishment next to a Black Panther headquarters, demanded the private meeting with Dunn before releasing the fourth agent.

Dunn flew to Memphis from Nashville after failing to contact the man, identified by police as LeSander Hudson, by telephone and in a special message broadcast by radio.

The three white agents released earlier were herded out of the store at gunpoint after being ordered to strip naked.

The last was released unharmed, and clothed, after three black city officials promised the 29-year-old co-owner of the store no harm would come to him if he placed himself in their custody.

One of the officials, Councilman J. O. Patterson Jr., had his car taken to the front of the establishment when the release arrangements were completed. (Turn To Page Fifteen) (See "Protest")

Urge Tourists Keep Coming

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Gov. Richard Kneip urged the nation Thursday to continue sending funds to flood victims in Rapid City and pleaded for a boost to the vital tourism industry of the Black Hills.

Tourism is the leading industry in Rapid City, where a flood which flashed out of the scenic Black Hills killed more than 200 persons and left 2,000 families homeless. Damages were estimated at more than $100 million.

Civil Defense officials set the latest death toll at 206. Hundreds remained on the missing list.

Kneip told a news conference, "We fear that the people may think the entire Black Hills was devastated by the flood and that's not true."

He urged vacationers to schedule trips to the Black Hills to prevent Rapid City from experiencing "the additional tragedy of economic loss in the weeks, months and years ahead."

Mayor Donald Barnett announced the formation of the Rapid City Area Disaster Foundation. "We have more than $101,000 already and I know more is coming," Barnett said. "I also have heard from 75 mayors around the country who are running fund drives for us. We need this money as soon as possible to help the 2,000 families left homeless."

State highway officials said only a few roads were impassable at present and announced that more than 150 heavy-duty vehicles have been aiding the massive cleanup.

Barnett said the cleanup effort since Monday has resulted in hundreds of tons of debris being hauled away at the rate of 275 truckloads an hour.

"The gruesome procedure of looking for bodies is continuing," he said.

The 2,500 National Guardsmen on duty since Friday have extended their search for bodies outlying streams, camping areas and downstream waterways.

Senate Cuts Funds For SAC Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Thursday to cut off money for the Subversive Activities Control board set up in the McCarthy era 22 years ago to identify Communist and Communist-front organizations.

By a vote of 42 to 25 the Senate adopted an amendment to an appropriations bill striking out $450,000 to finance SACB's work for the next fiscal year.

But the board was not dead yet. Funds for it have been included in the same bill passed by the House and the differences remain to be reconciled in a conference between the two houses.

The board has been a symbol for staunch anti-communists since it was formed in 1950 several attempts to put it out of business in recent sessions have failed.

In July of last year, President Nixon issued an executive order intended to expand the board's activities to include the investigation of such groups as the Weathermen and the Black Panthers.

Under Nixon's order the board was to update the attorney general's list of subversive organizations, used in security screening of federal employees.

In striking the funds, the Senate approved a move sponsored by Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Sam Ervin, D-N.C.

Both senators described the board as doing nothing, and Proxmire said it is "expensive and impotent."

William Craig, leader of the militant Vanguard Movement, objected to the proposal and said his group "would take steps to disrupt such an election."

But Whitelaw's plan, unveiled in the House of Commons, won support from Britain's opposition Labor party as well as the provincial Protestant-based Unionist party. The Unionists have dominated Ulster politics for half a century.

In Londonderry, Catholic women leading a peace campaign in Ulster's second largest city disclosed they had spoken with the leader of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army.

They said they told Sean MacStiofain at a meeting Tuesday they wanted an IRA ceasefire. The meeting took place, the women said, just before the Provisionals offered a seven-day truce. The offer was rejected by Whitelaw, who said he would not "submit to an ultimatum from terrorists."

He also promised a plebiscite on the issue of uniting the North with the Irish Republic if there is a widespread wish for one.

Two leaders of Northern Ireland's main opposition group later emerged from a meeting with Whitelaw calling on the IRA's ultranationalist Provisional wing to halt its campaign of violence.

They said Whitelaw had promised to "respond positively to any genuine end to violence."

Seek Court-Martial For General Lavelle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., called Thursday for court martial proceedings against Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle, who has acknowledged ordering unauthorized air strikes against North Vietnam.

Defense Department spokesmen told newsmen that "as of today" the case is closed. There is no plan, they said, to take further action against Lavelle, who has been removed from command and retired.

Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, said the Senate Armed Services Committee should investigate the raids.

Lavelle has acknowledged he ordered at least 20 unauthorized strikes against a buildup of Communist supplies from January to March 10 this year. This was just before President Nixon authorized massive raids into North Vietnam.

The U.S. command in Saigon reported 77 so-called "protective reaction" strikes against North Vietnam in the January-March period, a check showed. Command headquarters had no comment.

Lavelle, former commander of the 7th U.S. Air Force in Vietnam, told a House Armed Services Committee this week he ordered an end to the unauthorized strikes after he learned that three false reports had been sent to higher headquarters.

In a Senate speech Proxmire said Lavelle ordered as many as 20 unauthorized raids on enemy targets "at a time when delicate negotiations to end the war were going on."

"He defied the orders of his superiors," Proxmire said. "He countermanded the rules laid down by the President. He deliberately violated the principles of civilian control of the military."

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedman, said a retired officer could be recalled for court martial but said this is not contemplated in the Lavelle case.

The Defense Department defines "protective reaction" as air strikes against missile launching positions, radar sites, antiaircraft guns and associated supplies in response to actual or threatened attacks by the North Vietnamese against U.S. reconnaissance planes.

U.S. Halts Hanoi Bombing During Podgorny Viet Visit

SAIGON (AP) — The United States halted bombing attacks in the Hanoi region Thursday in a show of good will during the visit there of Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, American informants reported. But raids continued in the southern sector of North Vietnam just above the demilitarized zone.

The temporary suspension was viewed by some observers as a precautionary measure to avoid any incidents that might involve Podgorny during his tour of the Hanoi region. Podgorny flew to Hanoi Thursday morning after talks in Calcutta with Indian leaders on the Vietnam war. Diplomats in Moscow believe he is on a peace mission.

In its broadcasts monitored in Saigon, Radio Hanoi made no mention of Podgorny's visit or how long the talks with the North Vietnamese leaders would last.

Informants said it appeared unlikely that the American air raids would be suspended, beyond his visit unless there is a political development.

The United States resumed the bombing of North Vietnam last April 6, a week after Hanoi launched an offensive across the DMZ into South Vietnam.

The first raids in more than four years were carried out in the Hanoi region April 16, as a warning to Hanoi to call off its offensive and seriously negotiate in Paris.

Another Jet Crashes Killing All Aboard

SAIGON (AP) — A Cathay Pacific jetliner crashed Thursday in Vietnam's central highlands apparently killing all 81 persons aboard, including a Wisconsin family of 6 and 11 other Americans. It was the second Asian air disaster in two days.

American helicopter crews reported finding some bodies but no survivors, military sources said. The search was suspended at dusk.

The four-engine Conqair 880 jet was en route to Hong Kong from Singapore via Bangkok when it apparently broke up in flight.

A company spokesman in West Bend, Wis., said Thomas

J. Kenny, 50, president and chairman of the board of B.C. Ziegler Co., and five members of his family were aboard—his wife, Roberta, 46, and their children, Kathleen, 21, Daniel, 20, Mary Jane, 16, and Colleen, 13.

Cathay Pacific Airline officials in Singapore, where the flight originated, also listed an Andrew Pick, a friend of the Kenny family, the company spokesman said.

Other Americans boarding at Singapore were M.R. Thorne, Kenneth Grahame, Richard Lee and Diane Lee.

Boarding at Bangkok were Richard J. Meehan, John

Widaman and Mrs. Widaman, Lyons F. Livingston, Heidi Livingston and Jan Philip Kiser.

Widaman was believed to be John D. Widaman II, a diana University trustee, had been in the Bangkok area.

Cathay Pacific Airline officials in Hong Kong, where British company is based, are investigating the crash.

An airline spokesman said the plane was carrying 81 persons of 10 and 71 passengers.

On Wednesday, a lines DC-8 jet crashed near New Delhi, India, with 25 persons aboard. All were Americans.

Editorial Comment

By STEWART HENSLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress is expected to approve the Moscow agreements on limitation of offensive and defensive nuclear missiles, but only after some soul searching debate over whether the United States got suckered into a bad deal.

President Nixon and his top advisers are convinced the Senate and House will endorse the agreements once they recognize the perils of the alternatives.

Some of the bloom was taken off Nixon's presentation of the documents to Congress when it was disclosed for the first time that Russia and the United States had different interpretations of a couple of key provisions in the agreement limiting strategic offensive weapons.

Two documents were submitted to Congress.

Treaty Needs Approval
One is a formal treaty requiring Senate approval, which places a freeze on the number of defensive nuclear weapons—the so-called antiballistic missiles (ABMs). With the exception of protecting each country's capital and enough ICBMs to retaliate if attacked, this leaves both vulnerable.
The second document is an "interim agreement" on the limitation of some strategic nuclear weapons. It does not require congressional approval but the President is seeking endorsement by both houses of Congress.

It is on the offensive weapons that the differences between the two powers still exist. A list of "interpretations" released by the White House Tuesday showed that the Soviet and American governments were not entirely agreed upon the definition of what constitutes a "heavy" ICBM.

The list of "interpretations" also revealed that Russia insisted it could further increase its nuclear armed submarines, set at 62 in the agreement, if America's allies in NATO build any more nuclear armed submarines. The United States rejects this interpretation.

Balance Is Even
The administration can be expected to argue that the United States is protected because the "interim agreement" on offensive weapons is tied directly to the treaty on ABMs and either party can pull out of the latter on six months' notice if it feels its national interests are seriously jeopardized.

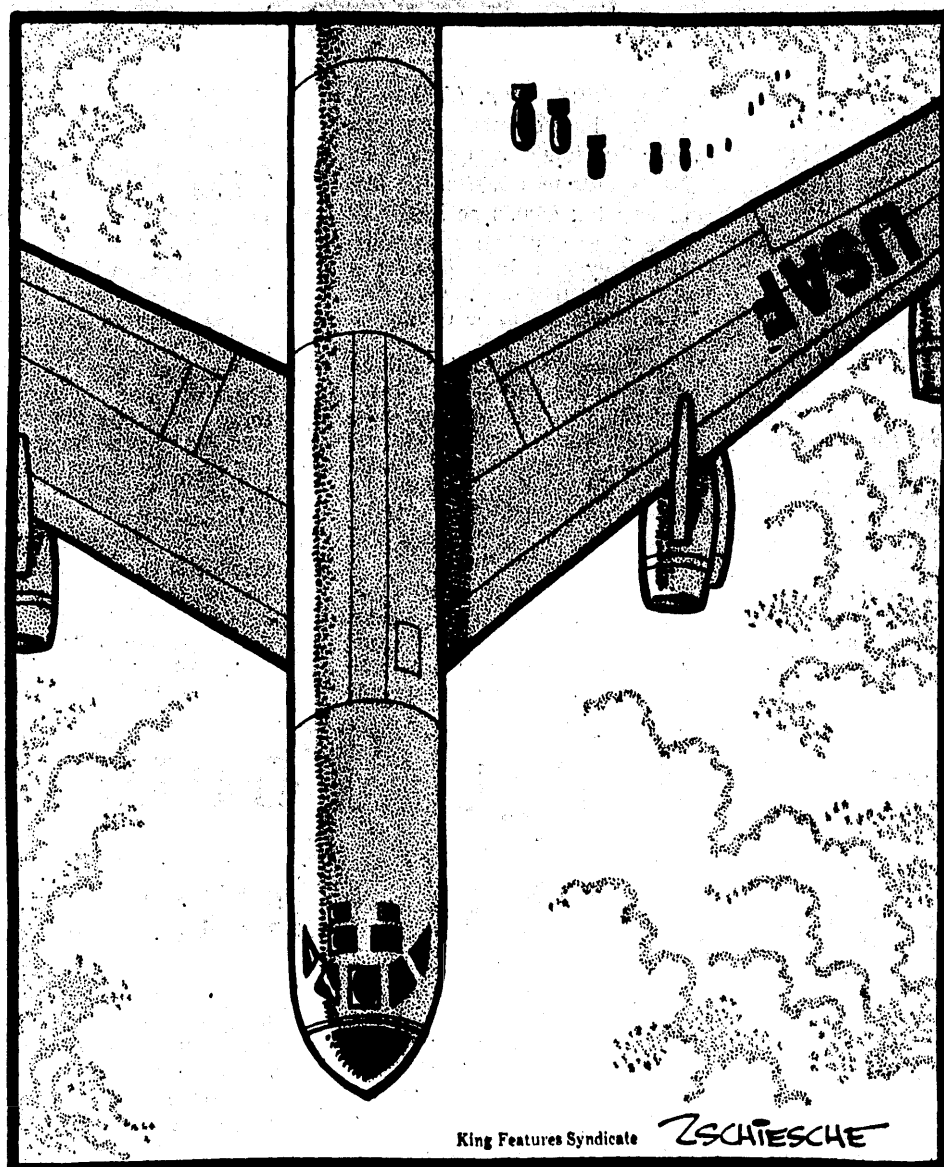

The administration also will argue that while the offensive agreement will leave Russia at the end of five years with a larger number of ICBMs and submarine based missiles, the actual strategic balance will remain about even. The United States, by virtue of its superior progress in placing several warheads on a single missile, will have about three times as many warheads as the Soviet Union and also will have about 450 weapon nuclear armed bombers compared to only 150 for Russia.

Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger says Russia, building nuclear subs at a rate of eight or nine per year, would have about 80 by 1977 if there were no agreement, whereas the agreement limits her to 62. The United States would still have only 44.

Kissinger points out that the Russians are required to eliminate one land based ICBM for each missile that they place on new submarines, thus reducing their edge in that field.

The complexity of the formulas and the differing interpretations offer a fertile field for considerable debate. However, the administration is confident that in the final analysis Congress will agree that the United States would be better off with agreements than without them.

Law Job Harder:

New Crime Breed Acts On Impulse

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—The prevention of crime has been made vastly more difficult by the growth over the past decade of a new breed of criminal.

Studies indicate he is less rational, more violent and therefore less predictable than the old breed, even when the gang wars of some time back are taken into account. He is likely to be an addict. He will take greater chances.

He may rob or kill less for the money than for the emotional gratification his violence seemingly brings. He may maul a victim unmercifully for a few dollars.

Drug use, of course, may have something to do with this erratic crime pattern. But the experience of men working in the field to date suggests that more often than not the irrational violence and the impulse holdups occur because the criminal is fascinated by the thrill of getting away with something that's illegal or in building stature among his fellows with whom he's playing a sort of perpetual game of "chicken."

Quite frequently, these "new-type" lawbreakers make no bones of these aims in talking with researchers.

What this evidence suggests, in essence, is that the professional is being replaced—to an extent—by the amateur. Interestingly enough, if one studies the personality traits of these men, they compare rather closely with the traits psychologists and psychiatrists say are observed in the typical hard drug addict. But one should not carry this comparison too far.

Police work becomes unbelievably more difficult. This new breed of criminal may have no permanent contact—cooperators, established fences. He may have no established pattern of operation—no routine.

Since he is less professional, and may operate largely on hunches, or moods, it is more difficult to foretell what he will do or how he will dispose of his take.

The proliferation of these crime "amateurs" makes it more difficult for lawmen to keep an eye on suspects. The lack of pattern may make the men more difficult to trace and to convict. Arresting a man and convicting him isn't likely to break up a ring. There's likely no permanent ring.

The new-type criminal is also reportedly a tougher problem in prison. He apparently has given no thought to the penalties involved for his crime—and therefore is less willing to live with the prison system until he gets out. He may want to show his toughness there too. There have been strong doubts that prisons were set up in a way to change the "old-type" convict. There seems to be little argument that the results on the "new" man are almost uniformly negative.

The question then is what to do with men of this type in prison. Chief Justice Warren Burger has suggested more prison psychiatrists.

The indication, however, is that this particular style of inmate is particularly difficult to reach, even by professional workers. The cost may be as-tronomically high, and there is little research to suggest that this solution would work.

But as Burger and a number of other jurists have pointed out, unless we find some solution, these men will come out to repeat, then shuttle perpetually back and forth between our prisons and their own brand of underworld.

It is an area which requires a great deal more study than we have given to date. It is no place to try instant solutions.

Ann Landers:

Heartsick Because Daughter Moving Away

Dear Ann Landers: I hate possessive mothers and I swore I would never be one. It's easy to say until it hits home. Please give me some encouraging words so I can let my only daughter move away with a light heart.

Mary will be married soon and they are moving to Vermont. This is like the end of the earth to us. We are of modest means and will not be able to visit them very often. Tell me to be happy for them and to stop thinking about US. I took care of my aged mother and mother-in-law until they died. How I envy them their later years. They were near their children and grandchildren, a joy that will be denied me. I am heartsick over this and I'm trying not to show it. Now I know why so many mothers cry at weddings.

My husband said last night that maybe we weren't very good parents or Mary wouldn't move so far away. I admit, Ann, the same thought has crossed my mind. Are we failures as parents? What do you think? We'll be looking for your answer.—B. Wn.

Dear B. Wn.: On the contrary. Successful parents produce children who CAN move away without falling to pieces. But why do you view this as a permanent separation? Life is unpredictable. We are living in a highly mobile society. Your daughter and her husband might be back next year. Or perhaps you and your husband will move to Vermont after retirement. (It's beautiful there) Cheer up and be glad your little wren can leave the nest. Healthy birds fly away.

Dear Ann Landers: That Harvard professor of medicine is off his rocker. He signed himself Soporific in Cambridge. Who is HE to tell me that I don't love my husband just because I don't care to be up all night listening to him snore? His theory that a woman who cares about her man would consider snoring as music to her ears because "he is getting his rest" is too crazy for words. What about HER rest? The notion that snoring can be a reassuring sound is absurd. And then that other nut from Canton who agreed with the doctor and said, "When he snores I know he is THERE," sounds like the relieved compromise of a wife whose husband is running around.

Leonard and I have been married for 34 years. I love him very much. He is a great talker and well known teller of jokes—most of them I have heard at least 25 times. I listen to him plenty during my waking hours. I don't want to listen to him at night, too. I resent that professor's arrogant statement. And since you did not print his name I hope you will print this letter so he can see it. Who was it that said, "You can always tell a Harvard man, but you can't tell him much?"—Stanford Graduate

Dear Graduate: Probably a Yale man. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a perplexing dilemma with a brand new wrinkle. One of my husband's utterly ex lady friends is harrasing him for money she feels is due her. It seems she laid out some cash for plane tickets to accompany him on several rather expensive trips. She wants to be reimbursed.

My question: Shouldn't a "free" woman be expected to carry her own weight financially? What's your opinion?—Baby It's Cold Outside

Dear Cold Baby: Never mind MY opinion, what was their agreement? If he promised to reimburse her, he should do so. If they had no such understanding, the doll has no right to dun him at this late date.

Go-Ahead Urged For 'No-Fault'

The news that car owners in Massachusetts will receive an estimated $30 to $40 million in refunds from auto insurance companies should give a tremendous boost to the push for "no-fault" automobile insurance in 48 other states.

(Florida is the only other state besides Massachusetts which has adopted the complete system.)

The Massachusetts Supreme Court, upholding a decision by the state's insurance commissioner, ruled that companies must reduce their compulsory auto insurance rates in 1972 by 27.6 per cent and return the difference to policy holders.

For a car owner in Boston, for example, this will drop his premium to around $47. In 1970, before no-fault, it was $117 and had already fallen to $73 in the first year of no-fault.

Despite the experience of Massachusetts, "fault or no-fault" continues to be a hotly debated question. The stakes are immense, with some 110 million motor vehicles on U.S. roads and an annual record of 16 million traffic accidents involving 28 million of those vehicles, resulting in 55,000 fatalities, 2 million disabling injuries and over $9 billion in losses.

Under the present, much-criticized system that has prevailed since the beginning of the automobile age, fault is the determining factor in the payment of accident claims. The person who causes the accident is required to pay the losses, either directly or, more usually, through his insurance company.

But fault must first be proved, and this can mean years of waiting for court adjudication. More often than not, out-of-court settlements are made, which may be less than adequate for aggrieved claimants. Large chunks of the benefits are eaten up by lawyers' fees.

Under the various no-fault plans which have been advanced, the whole idea of liability is abandoned. All parties involved in an accident receive immediate compensation for their actual damages and medical expenses from their own insurance companies, though the right to sue for damages higher than a certain amount, say $2,500, is reserved.

Insurance companies had contested the Massachusetts rate-cutting order, but not no-fault itself. Almost every company has come up with its own version of the concept.

Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, fourth largest insurer of autos in the country, has designed what it calls one of the most complete plans. The American Insurance Institute advocates its model plan for the industry. The Automobile Manufacturers Association has announced its support of no-fault.

"No-fault has become a popular phrase," says Thomas B. McDonough, a vice-president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. "But that doesn't mean the legislatures will go ahead and adopt the fundamental reforms that are needed to correct the present system."

"If people don't speak up to their representatives, the chances are that the legislatures will either do nothing about auto insurance, or enact bogus no-fault plans."

President Nixon recently urged the nation's governors to make no-fault a matter of "top priority." Earlier, Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe warned the governors that Congress would act, perhaps next year, on a national no-fault auto insurance plan if the states fail to do so.

Thus the real question surrounding no-fault seems to be, not if, but how soon.

Q. My husband's former wife filed for divorce in June, 1957, and the judge signed the final papers in December, 1957. We were married in November, 1957. Are we legally married?

A. It would be a good idea to go through another marriage ceremony. In most states, including Illinois, a divorce does not take effect until the judge has signed the divorce decree, which is prepared after the divorce has been granted in court. In Illinois, to re-marry before the decree is signed is to commit bigamy and the marriage is void.

Tractors Stolen, Recover Truck Early Thursday

Sheriff's deputies were busy Thursday morning investigating two incidents east of the city.

The first call came from the Farm Service Co. at Franklin where a 10 horsepower John Deere tractor and mower was reported stolen. The tractor was about two weeks old according to investigating officers.

A truck, apparently abandoned, south of Dead Man's Curve east of the city on Route 36, was traced to Baker Chevrolet at Murrayville. The truck was apparently stolen from the Murrayville dealer and later abandoned with damage to the body of the vehicle.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating both incidents.

Deputies were also called to Murrayville Implement Co. where two new John Deere garden tractors and mowers were stolen overnight. Value of the tractors was listed at over $1,700. A padlock was broken off to gain entrance to the warehouse.

City police investigated a report from Jacksonville East Cemetery where a Cub Cadet tractor and mower had been reported stolen Thursday morning by cemetery authorities. A lock had been broken on a shed.

For Spanish-Speaking Children

By PENNIE SUE THURMAN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Spanish-speaking children—once doomed to life on the fringes of an unfamiliar culture—now are not only learning English in Chicago schools, but as being taught to read and write their native tongue.

The program, based on a relatively new concept that children who don't speak English should not be forced into American society without special preparation, provides bilingual education in public schools.

"It's not a remedial program," said Dr. Dorothy Kelberg, principal of the Frank Jirka Jr. School on the West Side where 220 of the school's 550 children are enrolled in a bilingual center.

"Kids today knock themselves out to learn a second language in junior high or high school," she said in an interview.

Chicago has one of the largest Spanish-speaking populations outside the Southwest.

U. S. Immigration Office records show an estimated 2-3 million Mexicans enter the United States each year with Chicago as their destination.

Dr. James Moffat, an assistant superintendent in the Chicago system, expects eventual expansion of the program to include all of the city's 45,000 Spanish-speaking children.

"The local teachers want bilingual programs, so do the kids and parents," Moffat said. "The funding agencies are ready with the money, but our problem is finding teachers who are bicultural as well as bilingual."

The bicultural aspect is a secondary but important benefit of a bilingual program. Many adults of Latin-American descent, reminiscing about their school days, remember feeling ashamed of their heritage and how they tried to conceal it.

"My mother would pack tacos and enchiladas in my lunch," said Emma Del Gado, a teacher in the Jirka bilingual center. "I'd be ashamed to eat them because all my friends brought sandwiches. I hated school because I always felt out of place."

She said the bilingual program is responsible for a radically different attitude in her pupils.

"Many of them won't go out to recess until they finish their work," she said.

Another teacher at Jirka, Alexandria Rinaldi, said the bilingual program has ended discipline problems.

"A child won't misbehave in a class where he's satisfied," she explained. "It's only when children are frustrated or bored that they become discipline problems."

Moises Santiago, 5, spoke no Spanish when his mother enrolled him in a class for kindergartners who spoke no English.

"He refused to learn Spanish," said his mother, Margarita Santiago, who came from Puerto Rico when she was 11. "He said he hated Spanish. Now he enjoys it so much he makes a game out of it—'Let's pretend we don't know English'—and often corrects his older brothers and sisters."

Michael Quinn, director of program coordination in the Chicago district, said children cannot grow academically or otherwise without self pride.

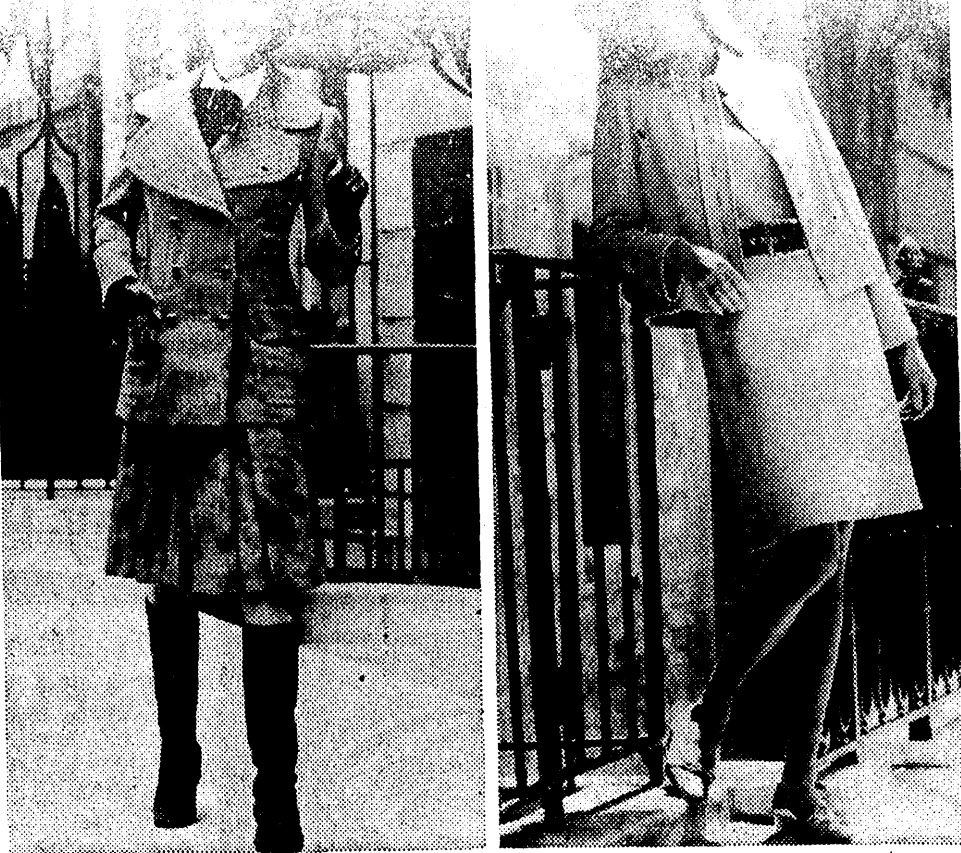

"Our society has taken its toll of kids by depriving them of their self-image. A child has to stand tall before he can learn his reading, writing and arithmetic."

Usually they were illiterate in both English and Spanish. During the 1971-72 school year, however, 12,000 of Chicago's Spanish-speaking children were enrolled in bilingual classes or a program called TESL (teaching English as a Second Language) funded under the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act and by the State of Illinois.

In the bilingual classes, the subjects are taught exclusively in Spanish at first, with English worked in until the instruction is 50-50 by the end of the school year.

Supporters of the program point out the bilingual education provides many children with ready-made careers—as translators, bilingual secretaries or as overseas representatives for American firms.

Bilingual programs are new to the Midwest, even though

As Metropolitan Center

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Pungent evidence of the stockyards may still assail the nostrils when the wind changes direction, but if you think of Kansas City, Missouri, mainly as an old cow town, forget it. Even the casual visitor passing through can quickly learn that the classic song's title line, "Everything's up to date in Kansas City," has no tongue-in-cheek overtones nowadays.

It may rank among the nation's top 10 livestock markets—with packing houses handling thousands of cattle, sheep and hogs daily in the sprawling yards along the Kansas, or more familiarly Kaw, River. But Kansas City today is a modern metropolis of 500,000 that can offer more than the steaks and other prime cuts to parks, 11 lakes, attractive residential areas, fashionable shopping districts, and numerous cultural and sports attractions. It also is in the midst of a multi-billion-dollar construction boom that includes the Kansas City International airport, a 100-acre business-residential project, a twin-stadium sports complex, a recreation-commercial center and a convention hall, among others.

For the culturally-inclined there is the Nelson Gallery and Atkins Museum on 45th and Oak Streets, rated among the nation's best. Its collections of paintings, sculptures and other art works date back to the Sumeria era of 3,000 B.C. and includes what is said to be the third largest display of Oriental art anywhere outside of China.

During the summer, the 7,600-seat outdoor Starlight Theater—second largest of its kind in the United States—in Swope Park features top stars in a series of Broadway musicals. In the fall, the Lyric Theater uptown presents opera in English. The Music Hall in the downtown Municipal Auditorium is home to Kansas City's 39th Philharmonic Orchestra and its civic ballet. Construction of a new $20 million convention center nearby is scheduled to begin this fall.

For sports fans there are major league professional baseball and football games as well as pro basketball, soccer and other athletic contests. In eastern Kansas City, the first two-stadium sports complex is nearing completion. The $64 million complex includes a 42,000-seat stadium for the Royals baseball team and a 78,000-seat facility for the football Chiefs. For recreation and relaxation, there is 1,786-acre Swope Park—second largest city park in the country—with two 18-hole golf courses, tennis courts, swimming pool, two lakes for boating, and fishing, riding and picnicking. The Kansas City Zoo is here too.

Just north of the Missouri River, where French Trappers established a trading post in 1821, Texan Lamar Hunt is pumping some $20.5 millions into his "Kansas City's World of Fun" Park and regional shopping district. It is scheduled to open next April.

In Kansas City, a $200 million dollar tribute to one man's faith in the future of his hometown is taking place. Known as Crown Center, the business and residential project was developed by Joyce C. Hall, founder and board chairman of Hallmark Cards, Inc., to revitalize 100 long-neglected acres near midtown.

The 5,000-acre $212 million International airport is under construction about 20 miles north of downtown Kansas City and is targeted to be opened for regular passenger services in November. It is expected to be about a 20-30 minute drive via the Freeway. The present Kansas City Municipal airport is about one mile northwest of the city, or about 5-10 minutes by car from downtown.

Kansas City has more than a score of first-rate hotels, motels and inns, including the Muehlebach, Plaza and Hilton, Sheraton, Holiday and Travelodge motels among others.

Nearly 77 per cent of the farmers in Tennessee own all the land they work on.

Over 50,000 Drivers Fail

Last year alone, over 50,000 Illinois licensed drivers failed the state written examination. This year the number of drivers that will fail could jump to a hundred thousand or more. Experts say—"One reason is, that rules and regulations change, and even some good safe drivers just don't keep up with the new laws." If your license expires this year, you may be among the hundreds of thousands that will be reexamined in 1972. So if you're nervous about taking the state written exam, here's good news. You can now purchase your own "self-scoring" test papers, complete with questions, answers and road signs you should know for that important examination day. This method has helped thousands pass the state exam. Introductory price just $6 plus 75 cents handling. (Check or money order only.) Mail to AA-AA School of Safe Driving, 6304 N. Wanted - A Buyer For Chopped Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wanted—a buyer for $1 billion in ground money. Cheap—starts at $10 per ton.

If the federal government could advertise a product it is having a hard time getting rid of—worn-out U.S. currency—that's probably the way it would read.

Federal reserve banks are beginning to grind up cash instead of burning it, because many localities have antinuclear laws to protect the environment. Treasury officials say grinding eventually will be the only way they will dispose of old dollars.

But what to do with the end product—a fine, light green fluff, has presented problems, and the Treasury Department is trying to sell it.

So far, only one company, a Kansas well-drilling outfit, has been interested in buying the lint-like chopped cash.

The David Mudd and Chemical Co., Treasury officials say, is buying ground-up dollars from the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank for $10 a ton and using it as well-drilling mud. The ground-up money, turned into a thick slush, is used in the boring process.

The Treasury says it is also investigating selling the former greenbacks to a roofing company for use as roofing felt, but no deal has been worked out.

The only problem is there aren't many commercial uses for worn-out money.

The government destroys about 2,500 tons of currency a year, about two billion notes with a face value of $12 billion.

Treasury officials say they would like to make old dollars into stationery, but it is out of the question because of Secret Service regulations. Someone might get the idea that they can use the paper for counterfeiting.

"It still has the distinctive fabrics that could cause problems to secret service in its counterfeiting operations," said O. H. Tomkinson, the department's management analysis officer.

Another problem is that it costs too much to get the ink out, so that any end product made from dollars is going to be money-green.

The Dallas Federal Reserve Bank is the only one doing the grinding now, but this summer banks at Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Minneapolis will begin shifting from burning to grinding.

Tomkinson figures the government will grind up about $1 billion worth of cash this year.

Medical Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caught in a dollar squeeze between hospital administrators and antipoverty lawyers, the government has secretly weakened its charity-care orders to federally built hospitals.

The result may be that fewer poor people receive free medical help in thousands of hospitals and clinics built with federal Hill-Burton funds.

Such facilities have been required by law since 1946 to provide "a reasonable volume" of free services to poor people. Lawsuits filed by antipoverty lawyers prompted HEW to try and define "reasonable volume."

The partial retreat was confirmed Wednesday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare although one official, reluctant to disclose details, declared that even the number of members on a public advisory committee was confidential information.

The new proposal, scheduled to be published in the Federal Register before July 1, prescribes that all health-care institutions built or modernized with Hill-Burton funds should provide free care to indigents at the rate of three per cent of operating costs or 10 per cent of the original loan or grant.

An undetermined number of the 6,308 hospitals and other facilities which have received a total of $3.7 billion would be exempt, however, because the obligation is limited to the period of the original 25-year loan or 20-year grant.

The first proposal made public in mid-April would have applied a formula of free-care equal to at least five per cent of operating costs or 25 per cent of net income, whichever was higher.

The American Hospitals Association estimated that the government received up to 2,000 letters, all but five per cent opposing that plan.

The AHA, with a membership of about 7,000 hospitals, had warned that private patient rates might be forced up nationwide to cover the costs of expanded free care.

David F. Drake, the AHA's associate director in Chicago, said he is not totally satisfied with the compromise but thinks it averted a legal challenge.

About 85 per cent of the hospitals involved already meet the compromise requirements, he said.

The compromise was approved by the Federal Hospital Council at a secret meeting Tuesday night. It emphasized that the proposal was not a rigid requirement, because state Hill-Burton agencies could raise or lower the free-care level based on each hospital's financial footing.

The issue was brought to a head by the National Legal Program on Health Problems of the poor, partially supported by federal funds, which filed federal court suits against hospitals in Louisiana, Colorado, West Virginia, Florida and the District of Columbia.

Cook sliced zucchini and onion strips in olive oil in a skillet. Add canned stewed tomatoes and reheat. Serve in sauce dishes.

Business Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It would be difficult to single out any one industry as being more on the defensive than another today, as government, consumers, environmentalists and others challenge old prerogatives.

But you can say with confidence that the advertising industry at the moment is high on the list of those arguing the case most vociferously, if only because articulation is their product.

Paul C. Harper, Jr., chairman of Needham, Harper & Steers, Inc., summarized the industry's attitude toward attacks from government and consumers in a speech earlier this year to the Hollywood Radio & Television Society.

He called it "A Fireside Chat with Commissioner X," who could be a member of the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Communications Commission, the Federal Drug Administration or staff members of these groups.

"Let's take the six most common complaints about advertising," said Harper, "and ask whether they are justified and, if so, whether they should take corrective action."

The first complaint, as he sees it: "Much advertising is untruthful."

His response to Commissioner X: "Very little advertising tells overt lies, and that which does should be stamped out. Unfortunately, some advertising still uses half-truths, or implies qualities or quantities that are not there."

"Difficult though it may be to establish standards, our industry, through the new National Advertising Review Board, will, I am sure, come to grips with the problem ... Failing that, we should fully expect government action."

Second complaint: "Advertising affects overt behavior adversely."

In respect to the charge that violent ads promote violent behavior in children, Harper claimed the area needs additional study. "If there is clear evidence of a cause and effect relationship, then advertising and/or programming should be modified by self-regulation, or by government action if necessary."

Third complaint: "There is too much advertising."

"Yes," said Harper, "there is. Too much for me. Too much for our industry's good. And too much for the public." In the past five years, he states, there is evidence that the 60-second commercial has declined in effectiveness by 20 per cent, "presumably due to clutter."

His conclusion: "I believe that increasing clutter is having a devastating effect on public confidence in, and acceptance of, advertising, and unless voluntary measures are taken it remains a wide open area for government intervention."

Fourth complaint: "Much of advertising is in bad taste." True, he said. It applies "all the way from irrelevant sexual allusions to the discussions of stomach disorders at mealtime."

His solution: A matter for the industry's conscience. "When the government sets standards of taste, it preempts the editorial function, and freedom of speech will ultimately be impaired."

Fifth complaint: "Advertising fosters monopoly." Said Harper: "Here the proposal is that a ceiling should be imposed on advertising dollars—or that after a certain share level, allowable advertising dollars should be decreased ..."

"Sheer tinkering," was his answer. Those forbidden ad dollars, he argued, would merely be spent in other forms of promotion "and the effect on economic concentration will remain roughly the same."

Sixth complaint: "Advertising is wasteful economically." "What this theory totally ignores are the intangible values of the free market. If you believe in competition, you have to let producers compete."

"The economic cost of dampening down this process by excessive regulation would, I suspect, be far greater than the cost of brand proliferation as we now have it."

Speculators Push Price Of Platinum

By RON SCHERER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—In recent weeks speculators have pushed the price of platinum futures skyward. They're betting that the precious metal will be used in anti-pollutant devices in auto exhaust emission systems.

From May 18 to June 7 platinum futures—contracts to deliver platinum at a future date—moved from $100 to $130 per troy ounce on the New York Mercantile Exchange. On that June date, for instance, the futures price fluctuated as much as 700 points ($7.00) and trading twice was suspended in the 4 hours of trading.

A government announcement on May 12 apparently touched off the speculation. On that day Washington said it would not extend the deadline it had given the auto industry to clean up exhaust emissions to certain standards.

Since Engelhard Industries had announced a system using platinum group metals as a catalyst, one apparently which would meet Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) standards, the stampede to platinum was on. Should the platinum system be adopted by Detroit

Analysts Describe Russian Offer

One analyst described the Russian offer as "the typical way the Russians sellers move. They just sort of ooze onto the market, get a good price, then melt away."

In this war between the forces of supply and demand, the South Africans figure substantially. As the main platinum producers, they were alerted by a U.S. consular envoy that there will be a need for increased output. Platinum industry sources there said they wanted firm contracts before beefing up production. After all, they noted, platinum has had a volatile price history. During the late 1960s it sold as high as $300 per troy ounce, and in recent years in the high 90s.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16—Born today, you are an exceptionally independent person possessed of a personality that is inclined to dominate in whatever situations or circumstances you find yourself. Not one to fade into the background simply because you are not well versed in whatever topic, issue, or work is at hand, you will always step forward to take whatever instruction is necessary to put you on a par—or better—with everyone else. Your facility for learning makes it possible for you to be a follower one week and a leader in the same field the next.

Kind-hearted and generous, you nevertheless are always on the alert against being taken advantage of. This is not a natural wariness, however, but is, rather, something which you have developed over the years as a result of several bad experiences during your formative years. Your ability to separate the wheat from the chaff insofar as the sob story goes makes it possible for you to lend your aid where it is most needed at least 90 per cent of the time.

An idealist when it comes to personal relationships, you expect—and usually get—loyalty, durability, and an exchange of honest feeling from your associations with others. If you find that such benefits are not forthcoming from any particular relationship, your inclination is to stop trying and move on to greener pastures. Usually you are quite right in doing so; when you are not, you may suffer deeply.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

SATURDAY, June 17
GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—A stranger arrives with an exceptional opportunity. Your initial reaction may be wariness to the point of refusal; be wise and think things over.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—An ordinary Saturday which may be sparked by an unusual business opportunity. Don't be surprised should you be chosen for special consideration.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—A day when you feel so energetic that you can do your own work and another's, too. Take advantage of a feeling of well-being to complete a project of long standing.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—You should have less difficulty than usual today in your relationships with the elderly. Keep adverse opinions to yourself at evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—A good day for celebrating a job well done—even if completion date was some time ago. Gather friends and family around you at evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Let your keen feeling for the drama in any situation lead you to an accurate assessment of another's difficulties. You can help a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Keep alert to the underlying drama of the present situation. Friends and enemies may both prove in need of your help this afternoon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Give another his head; it may be the best thing you've done for yourself in ages. Friends may find it difficult to speak; if so, put words in their mouths.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Cooperate with family members on plans for a celebration tomorrow. Consider yourself fortunate to be allowed to lead the group.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—If you are careful to distinguish between real affection and the kind of gratitude that is so often mistaken for affection, you will do yourself a favor.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Make your decision in haste this morning and you will surely regret it at leisure for many days in the future. Be assured of another's support.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Discover precisely what it is you like about your present position within the home and then work to make the most of it. Assist children.

For McGovern

NEW YORK (AP) — It was hard to tell whether prairie-state Sen. George McGovern was comfortable with all those so-called jet-setters and beautiful people.

But the Democratic presidential front-runner from South Dakota would certainly have no trouble today finding a place for the $350,000 they helped raise Wednesday night for McGovern's White House campaign.

Actors Warren Beatty, Dustin Hoffman, Paul Newman; actresses Julie Christie and Shirley MacLaine; and singers Simon and Garfunkel and Peter, Paul and Mary were among the celebrities who appeared for McGovern.

The massive rally at Madison Square Garden, said by some McGovern aides to be the largest audience of his 1972 campaign, came in the final days of McGovern's campaign for New York's June 20 Democratic primary.

With the cheapest seat going for $5 and the most expensive at $100, McGovern's aides said the affair would bring in $350,000 to $400,000 for the campaign.

It generally wasn't considered the senator's best speech of the week, and the crowd was less than fervent as he appeared immediately following a series of somber ballads by Simon and Garfunkel.

Earlier, in a room off a cement-block corridor backstage at the garden, McGovern and his wife, Eleanor, chatted informally with the colorfully attired entertainers who had come to help McGovern win big next Tuesday and go on to capture the Democratic nomination in Miami Beach next month.

There are 278 Democratic delegate votes in Tuesday's election here, and McGovern, whose only major competition is the uncommitted delegate slates in various congressional districts, is expected to win well over 200 delegates.

Following a potluck supper June 7, served by the Women's Auxiliary, WWI Barracks 385 met at the K. of C. Hall. There were nine officers and six members attending. Commander Hayden Walker presided. The deaths of John A. Ross and Earl Smith were recorded and Walter Ahlquist was reported ill at his home 444 South Main street. Thank yous were acknowledged from the Ross, Hart, Nortrup and Hillham families. Al Kovachoff was named to the fish fry committee. The Barracks is allowed ten delegates to the State Convention July 12-14 at Peoria and the Barracks voted the sum of $25 each for each delegate attending.

Commander, Don Henderson; senior vice commander, Al Kovachoff; junior vice commander, I. Goodman; quartermaster, Gilman Squires.

Chaplain, Charles Baker; 3-year trustee, Paul Brockhouse; two-year trustee, Eugene Dods-worth; legislative officer, John Stokes. The installing officer was Elbert Brasel and Leo Lohy was sergeant-at-arms.

The attendance prize went to Buddy Hayden Walker.

Cunningham Jumps To ABA Cougars

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Billy Cunningham, known as "the Kangaroo Kid" during his college basketball career at the University of North Carolina, leaped to the Carolina Cougars Thursday, putting an end to a lengthy squabble over his services.

The 29-year-old New Yorker, a 6-foot-7 scoring and rebounding star, decided to comply with a court order that he play with the American Basketball Association Cougars or nobody during the two remaining years of a contract he signed with the ABA team while still with the National Basketball Association's Philadelphia 76ers.

Cunningham and Cougar officials held a news conference in Charlotte Thursday to announce the decision. A similar gathering was held later in the day at Greensboro, the other home of the Carolina team.

"I've never had anything against playing with the Cougars," Cunningham said. "I'm impressed that their people are the type who will build a successful organization. I'm just glad it's all over. I love the game of basketball and I am anxious to play here."

Cunningham played the last seven seasons with the 76ers, averaging 21.3 points and 10.4 rebounds a game.

Yankees Cruise To 8-1 Victory Over White Sox

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer's three-run homer in the third inning chased Stan Bahnen and the New York Yankees went on to an 8-1 American League victory over the Chicago White Sox Thursday night behind pitcher Fritz Peterson.

The Yankees clipped Bahnen, 3-7, for a run in the second on singles by Roy White and Ron Blomberg, a wild pitch and the first of two sacrifice flies by Bernie Allen.

Murcer cracked his home run an inning later after Horace Clarke and Johnny Callison opened with singles.

Clarke finished the Yankee scoring with a three-run homer in the eighth inning.

Five double plays helped Peterson overcome three Yankee errors and raise his record to 5-8. He pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the sixth by getting Dick Allen on an infield pop and Rick Ruffalo on a double play grounder but was touched for a run in the ninth on three straight hits, including Mike Andrews' run-scoring double.

McCarver, Hoerner Go In Trades

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies dealt ace left-hand reliever Joe Hoerner and a minor league first baseman to the Atlanta Braves Thursday for pitchers Jim Nash and Gary Neibauer.

It was the second deal in less than 24 hours by new Phillies' general manager Paul Owens, who Wednesday night traded catcher Tim McCarver to the Montreal Expos for catcher John Bateman.

Owens considers it the start of an overall shakeup in the Phillies, a club that has been a National League doormat for the past six years.

Royals Outlast Red Sox By 13-9 In Bat Parade

BOSTON (AP) — John Mayberry drove in six runs with a pair of two-run doubles and a homer, leading the Kansas City Royals to a 13-9 victory over Boston Thursday in a wild baseball game replete with 32 hits.

The hit total was the most in the American League this season.

The Royals trailed 4-1 going into the sixth inning when they started their overhaul operation. They erupted for six runs in the sixth, three in the seventh and, finally, three in the ninth when Mayberry hit his two-run homer.

Amos Otis also homered for the Royals in their 15-hit attack while Tommy Harper and Rico Petrocelli collected homers in Boston's 17-hit offensive.

Grid Giants Get 2 From Browns

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants of the National Football League announced Thursday they had acquired defensive end Jack Gregory and defensive back Fred Summers in separate transactions with the Cleveland Browns.

Gregory, a 6-foot-5, 250-pounder heading for his sixth pro season, had played out his option with the Browns and negotiated with the Giants as a free agent. The Giants turned over their No. 1 1973 draft choice as compensation.

Summers, a 6-foot-1, 190-pounder with three NFL seasons behind him, was acquired from the Browns for a No. 2 1973 draft choice the Giants previously had obtained in a transaction with the New England Patriots.

The Giants expect both Gregory and Summers to hold down starting positions.

1975 OPEN IS SET
NEW YORK (AP) — The 1975 U.S. Open golf championship will be played on the No. 3 course of the Medinah Country Club in Medinah, Ill.

The Open was last played there in 1949 when Cary Midgoff won with a two-over par 286 score.

CHARLOTTE, N.C.: Former University of North Carolina basketball team-mates Larry Brown (left) and Billy Cunningham have joined again. Brown, now coach of the Carolina Cougars of the ABA, shows off jersey Cunningham will wear on the team. Cunningham went to the Cougars after losing a two-year court battle. Nicklaus In Six-Way Tie For Open Lead

Ailing Lee Struggles Three Back

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Heavily-favored Jack Nicklaus cruised into a six-way tie for the lead with a 71 in the first-round of the U.S. Open Golf Championship Thursday while Lee Trevino, his body racked and aching from a recent bout with pneumonia, struggled in with a hard-won 74.

"I shot 74. It should have been 85 and I should be in a morgue somewhere," Trevino said in a hoarse, rasping whisper after the two-over-par round opening defense of the title he won a year ago on the first leg on a blitz of the American, Canadian and British national championships.

"I feel terrible. I must have taken a dozen pills of one kind or another before I started. I'm going to bed and I'm not going to get up until I have to play again Friday," Trevino said.

Nicklaus, meanwhile, was locked in a record traffic jam for the top spot with Chi Chi Rodriguez, Orville Moody, Mason Rudolph, Tom Shaw and Kermit Zarley, all with 71s.

The six-way tie matched the Open record for the most men tied at the end of one round. The record was set 76 years ago in 1896. And it matched the modern record for the highest score to lead the first round of this most prestigious of all the world's golf championships.

The six leaders were the only ones in the elite field of 150 able to break par 72 on the 6,812 yards of ocean-side real estate that makes up this gorgeously picturesque but subtly dangerous course on the Monterey Peninsula.

Scores were exceptionally high. More than 30 players, well over one fifth of the field, was at 80 or higher.

The group able to match par on the rolling layout that features the Pacific Ocean as a hazard on eight holes included Mexican-born American citizen Cesar Sanudo, Don Massengale and a pair of South Africans — Bobby Cole and disappointed Gary Player.

Player, a doughty little globetrotter from South Africa who ranked as one of the pre-tourney favorites, had it three under par for the day, then bogeyed three of his last four holes.

"It's disappointing, being three under—you've got to capitalize on it when you have a game going," Player said after his bogeys.

But he had plenty of company in the telling of hard-luck stories.

Arnold Palmer, the 42-year-old giant who hoped to break an eight-year famine in major tournaments, finished with a fat 77.

Tom Weiskopf had it three under par, then double bogeyed the 13th and finished at 73. Bruce Crampton of Australia was three under par through seven holes—then bogeyed the next two and finished at 74. Billy Casper had the same total.

Doug Sanders, a veteran who had won his last time out, started six-six in the 54-degree temperatures and swirling fog that greeted early starters and took an 81.

But even that was much, much better than the fate that befell tour regular Bunky Henry. Henry was one under par after three holes—and didn't make anything better than a bogey the rest of the way. He had an 88.

Homer Blancas had the widest one of them all, however. He birdied four holes in a row, then made a seven on the par five sixth hole where he buried his third in a bunker, then three-putted. Homer rallied with birdies on the next

Rubin New Head Coach Of 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roy Rubin, who says he's used to starting at the bottom, was named head coach Thursday of the National Basketball Association's Philadelphia 76ers.

Rubin, 45, rebuilt Long Island University's basketball program after the 1951 college basketball gambling scandals, and later became the university's athletic director. In 11 years as basketball coach at LIU, Rubin had only one losing season.

76ers general manager Don DeJardin handed Rubin a team which won 30 and lost 52 last season and finished a poor next-to-last in the Atlantic Division of the NBA. Since the season ended, the 76ers lost their best player, Billy Cunningham, to the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association via a federal court decision.

The selection of Rubin culminated a three month search by DeJardin for a successor to Jack Ramsay, who resigned after the final game of the 1971-72 season.

"I've always been used to rebuilding situations," Rubin said, "and I think the way they set the job up for me—in terms of what the general manager told me, what the owner told me and how they set my contract up—I don't think they expect any great miracles right off the bat."

Terms of Rubin's three-year contract were not disclosed, but he said the job presented "a great challenge. I think every coach in the country dreams of becoming a professional coach, even if they don't admit it."

Rubin said he knew what he was getting into, recognizing that the 76ers, especially without Cunningham, appear destined to battle to stay out of last place in their division.

"I know Philadelphia has problems," he said. "Cunningham is a tough loss. Whatever Cunningham did, five-to-eight other guys are going to have to make up, split his statistics among them."

"Sure it will be tough, but that's my job. I can't perform miracles, but I'll give it my best shot."

Cubs Bring Up Ricky Reuschel

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs announced Thursday they are bringing up right-handed pitcher Ricky Reuschel from Wichita to fill an open spot on their roster.

Reuschel posted a 9-2 record and a 1.23 earned run average with Wichita.

Manager Leo Durocher said he plans to use Reuschel, a spring training camp sensation, as a fifth starter in double-header situations.

The Miami Dolphins play their home football games in the 75,312-seat Orange Bowl.

Williams Rips Two As Cubs Romp 10-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Billy Williams, celebrating his 34th birthday, slammed successive homers—the first a two-run blast igniting a six-run fourth inning—as the Chicago Cubs pounded the San Diego Padres 10-1 Thursday.

Williams in his next time up, launched a three-run fifth with his 11th homer of the season. The Cubs also got the five-hit pitching from Bill Hands, 6-2.

The victim of the big Cub fourth was starter Bill Greif, 3-10, who gave up four walks and a double by Jose Cardenal before he was replaced by Gary Ross. Randy Hundley greeted Ross with a two-run, bases loaded single and a run-scoring double play grounder by Hands finished the onslaught.

After yielding a homer to Williams, Ross was nicked for two more runs in the fifth on Jim Hickman's single, Cardenal's triple and a double steal.

Cardenal slammed his second double in the seventh and scored on Ron Santo's two-bagger. The Padres finally scored against Hands in the sixth on a walk, Jerry Morales' double and Leron Lee's infield out.

Bucs Regain Lead Via 4-1 Decision

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nelson Briles pitched Pittsburgh back into first place with ninth inning relief help from Dave Giusti as the Pirates stopped the San Francisco Giants 4-1 in the first game of a twilight doubleheader Thursday.

Giusti got the last two outs after the Giants collected two singles off Briles. The victory boosted the Pirates back into first place in the National League East, a few percentage points ahead of the idle New York Mets.

Briles, 4-2, surrendered the only Giant run in the third inning on a single, an error, and a RBI single by Bobby Bonds.

Pittsburgh took the lead for good with a pair of fourth-inning runs off loser Steve Stone, 3-7. A walk and consecutive doubles by Milt May and Gene Alley provided the runs.

Pittsburgh added two more runs in the fifth on a walk, a triple by Willie Stargell and a sacrifice fly by Bob Robertson.

South African Athletes Asked To Withdraw

SEATTLE (AP) — Two South African athletes were asked Thursday to withdraw from the National Amateur Athletic Union track championships after a group of black American athletes protested South Africa's policies.

Stan Wright, chairman of the men's track and field committee for the AAU, said John Van Reenen, the world's top discus thrower this year, and Johan Halberstadt, a top distance runner, will not be permitted to compete in the 84th AAU championships here Thursday through Saturday.

Ira Berkow

NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Mike Marshall has had a whole mess of trouble in the big leagues. Jim Bouton, writing in "Ball Four," gave this reason:

"I'm afraid Mike's problem is that he's too intelligent and has had too much education. It's like in the Army. When a sergeant found out that a private had been to college he immediately assumed he couldn't be a good soldier. Right away it was, 'There's your college boy for you.' and 'I wonder what our genius has to say about that?' This is the kind of remark Sal (Maglie) and Joe (Schultz) make about Marshall."

Maglie, pitching coach for the then Seattle Pilots, and Schultz, manager, seem to have followed a philosophical pattern that most baseball people have nurtured toward poor, intelligence-ridden Mike Marshall.

But now, at least, he is being tolerated by the Montreal Expos, though he must surely be under constant surveillance. It's the way Solzhenitsyn is watched by the Russian secret police. One false move and — PFFT.

Pfft went Marshall when he was pitching for Detroit, and for Seattle, and for Houston. Marshall currently has been getting hitters out as a relief pitcher and Expo Manager Gene Mauch seems to think — yes, think — that this outweighs any intellectual threat Marshall may pose.

The threat to Neanderthal baseball geniuses has not been simply that Marshall is nearing a Ph.D. in kinesiology, nor that he teaches structural analysis at Michigan State in off-season, nor that he developed a screwball by following Bernoulli's Principle, a law of fluids, which he could tell you is P plus KE over V equals K.

No, the threat was greater. In Detroit, although he was the club's top reliever in 1967, he didn't make the squad the following season. "It was a direct result," Marshall says today, "of certain activities." Those activities included a move by the players to make him a subversive — that is, the player representative.

One Detroit scout, who asked to be nameless, recalled that Mayo Smith, then the team manager, had called Marshall "that smart-ass college guy."

Marshall was sent to Toledo and had a 15-9 record and was named right-handed pitcher of the year in the International League. Yet Detroit didn't protect him in the expansion draft. Seattle got him. Marshall immediately became suspicious at Seattle when he and Bouton were caught playing chess in the locker room. Pfft. Back to the minors, of course.

On the first day that Marshall was brought up to Houston, Harry Walker gave him a long briefing. Among the list of responsibilities, said Walker, was that everyone must use the Ex-ergenie. Marshall refused. He said, in his soft-spoken, level way, that he had studied that exercise machine and found it not only useless but harmful.

"At no time does a baseball player use controlled tension with resistance — the fundamental idea of the Exergenie," said Marshall. "It's neurologically ridiculous."

The sword dropped after Marshall pitched all of five innings for Houston. He and his over-stuffed head returned to the International League.

He was back in the big leagues last season, and compiled 23 saves, second in the National League to Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh. His 66 appearances made him the third busiest pitcher in the league.

The 28-year-old reliever with the Kirk Douglas cleft in his chin has apparently found a baseball home for his screwy screwball and his screwball antics.

Some of those antics? Well — He trots in from the bullpen instead of walking in.

— He puts his cap on back first and then smooths the front of it over his forehead. One minor league manager told him that only "colored" players put it on that way; white players put the cap on front first.

— He has a misguided sense of values: "Baseball players are useless really, in the scheme of things. We just think we're important. Why do I play? I've thought of quitting several times. But I love the game. And I love the competition of playing with and against the best in the world. I'd play in the sandlots with them. For free."

— He believes that baseball players are adults and that a manager should not dictate their lives off the field. When Harry Walker first told him about Astro bed checks, about what to say to the press, about the Astro way of dressing and so on and on, Marshall finally asked: "And how many times a week may I kiss my wife?" Pfft.

Mecom Tells Of Disposal Of Interests

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Saints owner John Meacom Jr. said Thursday he is disposing of his interests in two controversial real estate deals, and is confident that doing so "will dispel any public doubt concerning this situation."

New Orleans Metropolitan Crime Commission Director Aaron Kohn had claimed Meacom was associating with underworld characters through two real estate investments of $12,000 and $26,000.

National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle concluded a two-week investigation of the allegation Wednesday and cleared Meacom of any wrong.

"Our investigation shows participation by Mr. Meacom in both of the real estate transactions cited by Mr. Kohn, but no underworld association of Mr. Meacom in these matters," Rozelle said.

Kohn's allegations were made May 31 before the U.S. House Select Committee on Organized Crime.

Mecom said in a statement Thursday that he has delayed a public statement concerning the charges until his attorney was able to get a copy of the witnesses' statements from the House committee and obtain documents relating to the real estate investment.

Rozelle said his investigations showed one of the individuals involved in the transactions had been convicted on an Internal Revenue Service gambling charge, "but it was not Mr. Meacom who brought this individual into the transaction, and the individual is by no means an associate of the Saints' owner."

Hint U.S. May Help Finance Concorde

MANILA (AP) — One of the builders of the British-French supersonic airliner said Thursday that the Nixon administration has hinted it might help finance the plane "after the election."

Sir George Edwards, managing director and chairman of British Aircraft Corp., said he received "quiet encouragement" from administration officials six months ago that the U.S. government was interested in becoming a third partner in the production of the British-French Concorde. "We should have an answer after the election," he added.

Edwards said BAC and its French partner, Aerospatiale, would welcome U.S. participation. It would "save money, take the risk out of the program and give the American aviation industry a boost," he commented.

The U.S. Senate stopped development of an American SST in March 1971 when it cut off subsidies to the prototype plane the Boeing Co. was developing.

Edwards arrived in Manila aboard a Concorde which is on a 40,000-mile promotional tour of the Far East. So far only one company, British Overseas Airways Corp., is committed to buy any of the planes, and that is a matter of the British government taking the money out of one pocket and putting it in another.

NBA Still Quiet On Merger Reports

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — The National Basketball Association's board of governors heard a brief presentation from its merger committee Thursday but the contents of the report were not disclosed.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy said no action was taken on the committee's report and that further discussions were planned Friday. The merger committee is headed by Abe Pollin of the Baltimore Bullets.

There has been considerable speculation that some type of consolidation with the rival American Basketball Association might come out of the annual meetings here. Kennedy, however, has discounted the reports.

Kennedy said the board decided Thursday to defer action on approving the sale of the Chicago Bulls and voted unfavorably on the application for purchase of the Boston Celtics. The Bulls had announced the sale last Tuesday of the club to a group of nine persons from Chicago and Milwaukee.

Dr. Kenneth R. Mangan of Jacksonville has been named Chairman of the 1973 Morgan County United Fund Campaign, according to Richard W. Brown, President of the United Fund.

Dr. Mangan, who is Superintendent of the Illinois School for the Deaf, will direct the 10 division fund-raising effort (finance, key employers, education, county, government, professions, state institutions, construction and miscellaneous), which is to begin in late September. Jewell A. Mann of Jacksonville serves as executive director of the program.

The goal for the 1973 campaign, which is expected to approximate the 1972 goal of $127,350, will be determined next month following meetings with representatives of the 13 agencies benefitted by the annual United Fund appeal. A record high total of $128,592 was received through the 1972 campaign effort.

Police estimated that some 2,000 spectators had gathered in the area of the BHK Cleaners by the time the black officials escorted the tax agent and the businessman from the store.

The agent released Thursday night, field representative Don Duncan of the state Revenue Department, was freed with his hands bound but, unlike the others, was fully clothed when released.

Hudson claimed he did not owe the back taxes because "the state of Tennessee willfully refused to deal with the needs of its black citizens of the state."

The governor sought to on-tant Hudson, first by telephone and then by a tape recording broadcast over a radio station and played on loudspeakers outside the store.

Hudson sent word out that he would listen to anything that Dunn had to say, but only in person and only in Memphis. As a result, the governor left for the airport to fly to Memphis in a state plane.

Hudson passed out a note saying no one inside would be harmed. Officers said several other persons were inside the building, but their activity was unknown.

Police surrounded the cleaners in the mostly black Orange Mound section of the city, where Don Duncan, superintendent of the Shelby County office of the state Revenue Department, was held hostage.

The back taxes allegedly were owed by Wesley Benn, the other owner of the dry cleaning establishment.

300 Gather For DeMolay Outing At Roodhouse

ROODHOUSE — Beautiful weather prevailed all day Sunday, June 11th, for the DeMolay Association of Southern Illinois outing held in the Roodhouse Community Park. Registration began at 9:30 for the 300 persons in attendance which included DeMolays, Rainbow Girls and Job's Daughters from Marion, Champaign and Quincy.

Special state officers from Joliet and the DeMolay State Sweetheart from Danville were present.

A special stage was set up on the east bank of the lake for the devotional service which was conducted by the Brothers and Sisters gospel singers from White Hall.

Chaplain Tom Andras offered opening and closing prayers. Master Councilor David Mansfield welcomed the guests and announced the day's program.

The Greene Co. Pork Producers, assisted by fathers of DeMolays, prepared barbecued pork chops with the Mother's Auxiliary providing and serving the remainder of the meal.

At 1 p.m. Mrs. Dorothy Davis and her committee presented the Miss Vogue and Mr. Cool pageant with Allen Greene serving as emcee, assisted by the state Sweetheart, Miss Debbie Beard. The contestants were introduced and given a question to answer. Balloting by those present revealed both local candidates as winners, Miss Donna Jackson as Miss Vogue and Craig Early as Mr. Cool.

The remainder of the day's activities included swimming, softball, volleyball, horseshoes, trap shoot, golf, live rock music and general fellowship. Because of the success and facilities offered at the Roodhouse Community Park the DeMolays were asked to again host the outing in 1973. No commitments were made at that time. Terry Davis was general chairman of the event.

Rallying Behind Adlai

By H. JOSEF HEBERT Associated Press Writer SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Disgruntled Illinois delegates to the Democratic National Convention appeared near to having enough votes Thursday night to block Mayor Richard J. Daley from becoming chairman of their delegation.

The delegates, spearheaded by the Muskie group, have been seeking all week to make U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III the chairman, a post which Daley has held since 1956.

The chairman will be elected at a delegate caucus in the St. Nicholas Hotel Friday and the Stevenson backers continued to scurry around for support through the night.

On Wednesday night, says Tom Wagner, Stevenson's administrative assistant, they had "a fleeting majority," but by Thursday afternoon that dissipated and an additional few votes were still needed.

Daley, the powerful Chicago mayor who himself is one of 59 Chicago delegates being challenged as to whether he should be a delegate, reportedly has been putting the pressure on a number of delegates who may vote for Stevenson.

STEPHANIE MASON ATTENDING MUSIC CAMP IN KANSAS

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Stephanie R. Mason, 1220 West College avenue, is among the 296 student musicians from 21 states participating in the Junior high music division of the 1972 Midwestern Music and Art camp at the University of Kansas.

The camp, which began Wednesday, June 7, features intensive instruction in music. It will end with a concert at 2 p.m. June 16 in the University theatre. The two bands, two choirs and one orchestra organized during the camp will perform.

"I know that some people have been urged not to vote for the senator," Wagner said in a telephone interview from Washington.

Commenting on charges that the Daley forces are going all out to get delegates, a pro-Daley delegate commented: "Sure, this isn't a kid's game, you know." Some delegates also reported pressure from the Stevenson camp.

There are 86 votes needed to be elected chairman. Daley solidly controls at least 66 with some of another 27 uncommitted delegates leaning toward the mayor. Muskie supporters have 61 votes and McGovern delegates 16.

Stevenson flew into Springfield Thursday night in advance of the delegate caucus which was to begin at 11 a.m. today. The Muskie delegates were to meet before the main session was to begin.

Earlier this week, the Stevenson backers through intermediaries suggested that Daley nominate the senator for the chairmanship in a gesture of unity.

That appeared to have been rejected, however, as Daley was reported to have been extremely active in recent days in an effort to cement his position among some wavering delegates.

Whether it is Daley or Stevenson who ends up as chairman, it is certain that the election will be a lively one contrary to past years in which Daley almost by custom became the chairman.

A key will be the shifting of the uncommitted delegates and the attitude of the McGovern delegate bloc.

So far, the McGovern delegates have refused to openly support Stevenson fearing that the senator might use his position as chairman to enhance Sen. Edmund Muskie in Miami Beach.

It is generally thought, however, that the McGovern group leans toward Stevenson and will cast their votes in that direction when the chips are down.

Among the uncommitted delegates, U.S. Rep. Ralph Metcalfe of Chicago has come out against Daley and for Stevenson furthering his break with the mayor. And Chicago Ald. Seymour Simon, who a few weeks ago said he will back Stevenson, also says he will vote for Stevenson.

Although the process of picking the chairman will hold the spotlight, the delegation also will choose delegates to be seated in three key national convention committees: rules, platform and credentials.

Illinois will have six seats in each of the committees and both the Muskie and Daley forces would like to grab as many of them as they can. McGovern forces also want one member placed on each of the committees.

Junior College Contract Probe Asked By Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate urged Thursday that the legislature's investigating commission probe public junior college building contracts for evidence of attempted bribes.

Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield, is author of the resolution which now goes to the House.

Horsley quoted newspaper stories reporting that Dr. James R. Davis, president of McHenry College in Crystal Lake, said he was told "it would be to his advantage to recommend certain architectural firms for a multi-million dollar campus expansion program."

The Senate also adopted a resolution offered by Sen. Kenneth Hall, D-East St. Louis, for a five-man Senate committee to investigate the Bi-State Development Agency.

Hall's resolution called for investigation of alleged financial mismanagement of the agency and charges of discrimination in fares and services and employment of the Bi-State Bus Company.

840 Attend Summer School Classes Here

Summer school "72" was propelled into action last Wednesday with a total of 840 student enrollments, and 20 faculty members. This marks the seventeenth year that a summer program has been offered to District 117 students. Courses, with the exception of the Junior Science Museum courses, will be in session for six weeks, ending July 21.

Classes are being held at Eisenhower, Armstrong, Turner, and Jacksonville High School.

Harry D. Emrick, Eisenhower Principal, directs the Jacksonville Summer School Program. Mr. Emrick recalls that District 117 has had a long history of providing a summer studies program as far back as 1955.

Additional courses in art, reading, and mathematics were added to the summer curriculum in 1957 and 1958, but were discontinued until 1969. The Junior Science Museum program continued to grow and develop mainly because it offered field study in Biology, Archeology, Anthropology, Astronomy, and Geology.

Three years ago, Charles Tavender, Washington School Principal, was appointed Director of the summer program, at which time a comprehensive program, enrolling many students, was developed. Courses in math, creative arts, reading, and independent study were again offered.

Both elementary and secondary school students are eligible to participate in the summer program. Typing and Junior Museum courses are open to students of both levels. Driver Education continues to be popular.

The District 117 Summer School Program is unusual in that each course has been specially written by teachers. Mr. Emrick stated, "This is a child centered program, the teachers are in the background. We want to offer the boys and girls an opportunity to explore a lot of different avenues of education and we want them to enjoy it while they are doing this."

1973 School Aid Bill Passed By House

SPRINGFIELD ILL. (AP) — The Illinois House approved Thursday a 1973 school aid formula backed by the administration of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and calculated to furnish local districts with $788 million in the fiscal period starting July 1.

A chief focus of controversy between General Assembly Republicans and Democrats in the spring budget-making session, the bill passed the lower chamber on a 152-0 vote.

A school aid formula backed by Michael J. Bakalis, superintendent of public instruction, that would have furnished the districts with a total of $911 million in the same period was defeated in the House Wednesday by one vote.

Rep. Gerald W. Shea, D-Riverside, the only member of his party to speak against the formula hammered out by the Republican-controlled school problems commission, said he would vote for it "because we have to do something."

The School Problems Commission figure calls for an expenditure of $90 million more in 1973 than in the current fiscal period, while the Bakalis plan asks for a rise of $266 million.

Tacked onto the measure passed by the House was an amendment sponsored by Rep. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, decreasing by seven cents the minimum local real estate tax rate at which dual districts qualify for state aid.

The rate for all dual districts—those encompassing a grade or high school system but not both—is currently 87 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

T.N. Hagel, 71, Former Resident Dies In South

T. N. Hagel of Atlanta, Georgia, brother of Miss Louise Hagel of this city, died June 11th in Atlanta. Funeral services were June 13 in Cathedral of Christ the King church in that city with interment in Arlington Memorial Park cemetery.

About Male Dancer

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest change in America's attitude toward dance that Erik Bruhn has seen in his 26-year ballet career has been the acceptance of the male ballet dancer.

Bruhn, 43, regarded as the best male classical dancer of his time, retired from dancing this year because of a painful ulcer.

He says, "Ten or 15 years ago when you would travel in America, you would find the conception about dancers, especially male dancers, very prejudiced and quite different from today. People would ask what you do and you hesitated to admit being a male dancer. You'd probably be slapped verbally or stared at oddly."

"Since I came from Denmark where male dancing was highly respected, I was shocked at first to realize that it was looked down upon here. In Denmark we had the tradition of August Bournonville who never liked the idea of the male being behind the ballerina and choreographed for the male dancer to be important, out in the center front."

"Then, the Russian and Danish companies visited here. When they saw them, the American public took like crazy to male dancing."

American Ballet Theater, with whom Bruhn has danced most, has toured widely in the United States and Bruhn dancing princely, heroic roles undoubtedly has helped bring male dancing into respect. So have Jacques d'Amboise and Edward Villella of the New York City Ballet and Rudolf Nureyev of the British Royal Ballet, with their performances in this country, both live and on television.

Bruhn says the quality of male dancing in America is sure to improve, because parents all over the country are sending young sons to ballet schools. "At one time, parents didn't allow sons to start at an early age because they thought ballet was only for girls. By the time a boy started training because it was what he really wanted to do, at 18 or 20, his body was already formed and it was too late to get the really proper schooling."

"The training is great discipline; the exercising can strengthen a child even if he isn't going to be a dancer."

Many dancers have become great who started studying on the advice of a doctor: "Your child is too weak. We have to build up his muscles." It could never weaken a child.

"A child needs to have demands and discipline put on him. They like it, too. They're dismissed in the state schools in Europe if they're not going to be good enough; we don't leave that up to the student. And if a child is in it a year or two and then has to stop, it's heart breaking for him."

"Oh, it's a big change since 1949-50, when I was here for the first time. I thought then, 'When will this ever change?' and now it seems to have happened in no time at all. Now you discover schools and interest and talent in every part of the states. We used to go into areas where people attended our one-night stands of ballet out of boredom. Now, they can talk about our performances from a background and they have comparisons to make."

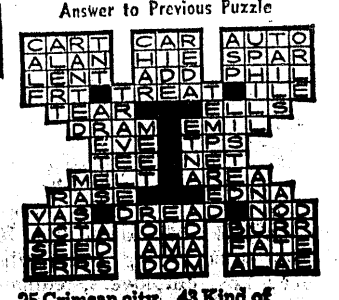

The Danish-born Bruhn now is in a transition period, with mixed feelings, one of them relief, with time on his hands he hasn't yet really planned how to use, generally optimistic.

In the near future, Bruhn says, he'll travel to some places where he has previously been, "working like a slave," in rehearsals and performances, to see them like a tourist. And he'll write a book or short stories or both, fiction, not an autobiography. He already has written a book about ballet technique and one titled "Beyond Technique."

Pants outfits for evening, at-home or office wear appear in most New York Couture fashion lines for Fall '72. Bell-bottomed and cuffed pants (left) combine with a shaped jacket and soft knit blouse for a red and navy pants suit by Tom Nasarre for Studio Six. For a sweater effect (center) over tapered brown slacks, David Crystal uses a collared "mock-shirt" top in brown/white stripes. The two-piece pant outfit is of Dacron doubleknit. For the beautiful stay-at-home or for an evening out (left), Sadye B. Weinberg whipped up full-legged black wool pants with a white satin man-tailored shirt. The little black sequinned top jacket is cut on the square.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Operation Needed To Correct Hernia

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please help us with our problem. My husband is 46, weighs 170 pounds and is five feet six. He has a hernia in the lower abdomen. It is not painful and seems to be of recent origin. Does surgery seem the best correction and how permanent and limiting is the future? I read somewhere about injections. Are they safe? Is surgery under local anesthesia possible?

Dear Reader — If your husband does have the usual type of hernia in the lower abdomen, it is best corrected by surgery. Such a hernia really is a hole in the muscular wall of the abdomen where the cord of the testicle passes to the scrotum. This allows a loop of the intestine to slip out through the hole to form the hernia or swelling that you have noted.

is a simple procedure and well tolerated by almost anyone except those with very severe health problems.

I would think any procedure such as injections would be most unsafe and unsuccessful.

You should talk to the doctor who does the surgery about what anesthesia is preferable. Some hernias in the lower abdomen can be repaired under spinal anesthesia. Some are done under local anesthesia.

One surgeon in Los Angeles

has his patients walk out of the operating room. This varies with the patient's condition, the type of hernia and what the surgeon and his team are used to doing for the best results. This really is not major surgery, but it is very important surgery.

Did you know the Black Death was back? One of the greatest scourges in the history of mankind — the Bubonic plague — has made a reappearance. Its sudden return appears to be related to the back-to-nature movement and particularly in the so-called hippie communities. Dr. Darwin L. Palmer in Albuquerque, N.M., has been studying "Black Death" in the Southwest. In a 1970 outbreak near Albuquerque there were 13 cases, the largest outbreak of the plague since 1924.

By HALL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — What is hell? At least 10,000 private hells of his age. But that is a delusion of grandeur. And as we go through our lives, our hells change. Here are a few hells that some particular unlucky rascals have had to confront at different out of a high crib.

even higher than the first one said you were.

Hell at seven is being caught by your mother stealing a dime from her purse.

Hell at 13 is drawing a draft lottery number under 10.

Hell at 20 is having empty pockets every Saturday night.

At 21 it is marrying the wrong red-haired girl.

At 29 it is marrying the second wrong red-haired girl.

Hell at 30 is if you're a woman and turning 40 if you're a man.

Hell at 41 is having to ask for a job sweeping out the office of the former high school pal who was voted most likely to succeed—and who did.

Hell at 45 is having your daughter jilted by the rich boy you had counted on becoming your ace in the hole.

At 50 hell is having your older son turn down your request to lend him $5 in walking-around money because he has just been fired from his job, too.

And at 65 hell is trying to live on a forged Social Security check you never earned in the first place.

What about 70? Well, hell then is finding half a cockroach in the plate of birthday soup served you in the penitentiary.

But the worst hell of all is to wake up in some smoky place at 80 and be handed a hot shovel by a red-eyed guy with a long forked tail who tells you they only have a coffee break there once every hundred years.

Of course, all along these hells may not be your fault at all. Sometimes we don't get to pick either our hells or our heavens. They simply descend on us by chance. You can always explain that to the chaplain—and let him punch your old Army tough luck card.

"To finesse or not to finesse, that is the question," soliloquized Hamlet. "Verily, Polonius had said that a finesse is a 50 per cent chance while a suit will break 3-3 but 36 per cent of the time."

Then Hamlet went right up with dummy's ace of spades. His bidding had shown three aces so it was evident that Guildenstern, sitting West, would not lead away from a king at trick one. Hence the finesse would be hopeless.

The ace play would win if clubs broke 3-3 or if the king of spades was in the same hand that held the long clubs.

He played a couple of rounds of trumps, cashed his ace and king of diamonds and ran the rest of the trumps. The first discard from dummy was the queen of spades; the second the last diamond.

Then he led a club to the king and a second club back to his ace. He had seen West discard three spades and finally the queen and 10 of diamonds on the trumps. It looked very much as if West had started with four clubs.

This knowledge might not do him any good, but East dropped the nine and 10 on the first two clubs. This set up a finessing

SAIGON (NEA)—A South Vietnamese political group presented its compliments to the Geneva Convention peace-keeping mission recently and then proceeded to plead for an official condemnation of North Vietnam's "naked aggression" spring offensive.

The peace keepers responded in characteristic fashion. They yawned. "We have taken the communication under advisement," a spokesman for the sleepy Geneva organization says. Which means the protest has been filed neatly between the cobwebs and totally forgotten.

The brushoff has failed to raise any dust here, officially or otherwise. Most people have forgotten that the Geneva mission, created in 1954, is still in existence. And those who are aware of its continued faint heartbeat realize it is a powerless body of frustrated diplomats who admit themselves to be "absolutely worthless."

Officially the mission is known as the International Control and Supervisory Commission. But that is about the only thing official about it any more except its expensive ineptitude. Established at the end of the French Indochina war to investigate breaches of the cease-fire treaty, the I.C.C. was once 1,000 individuals strong and an effective arbitrating force. Now it is down to 120 members (88 in Saigon, 22 in Laos, 10 in Hanoi) and it hasn't resolved anything in 15 years including how to pay its steadily mounting debts.

The mission in Saigon is located in a scruffy, dingy, mildewed former Foreign Legion compound. The three delegations—Indians, Canadian and Poles—occupy yellowed buildings which are separated by dog chips and cockroaches.

Even the bill paying is sensitive and fraught with politics. The I.C.C. was originally financed by France, Britain, Russia and China, but China hasn't contributed a dime since the 1950s and so one-fourth of the bills is always in arrears. Debts are piling. The I.C.C. owes Canada about $3.5 million in advances; the mission is into a chartered airlines company for $250,000; hotel managers have become more than anxious; even the Saigon water company is crying deadbeat.

Still, the mission goes through the motions. I.C. flags flutter from staff car fenders ("I don't know why it's just I.C.," says a wag, "maybe we can't afford the third initial"). Delegation doors are unlocked every morning. The 25-man administrative secretariat has a forever-official air as if they were actually doing something. Bureaucracy, it seems, dies hard, even when everything else is dead.

Says one delegate: "Somewhere in this city we have stored every scrap of paper, in quadruplicate probably, of the last 18 years. I'd like to find where it is. What a heck of a bonfire it would make."

Why does it go on, this tragic farce? Diplomatic observers say for many reasons, none of them good: "Poland wants to stay because it is the only legal Communist group in Saigon. India continues to stay because it's too bureaucratic to make a decision to leave. And Canada sticks because it's outvoted on the question."

So the vaudeville continues. Canada has spent the last 18 months trying to get members to vote on new wiring for its commissioners villa. Recently, the mission's charter plane was shot at over Laos, but members couldn't agree on a statement of objection. The Indians waffle. The Poles stay firm. The Canadians shrug their shoulders.

And the war rages endlessly on.

Quemoy Gets A Jump On 1984

By TOM TIEDE
 QUEMOY (NEA)—Not many of the 140,000 inhabitants of this tight, tiny Chinese island have ever read George Orwell's novel about the totalitarian future. It's just as well. If they realized how closely they resembled the Orwellian robots of tomorrow, if they knew how near their society is to the structures of 1984, it would do them no good anyway. The people here live like creatures in a zoo. But wondering why is not popular. Because on Quemoy, indeed, ignorance is strength.

each morning when they are rousted from sleep by the 6 a.m. propaganda broadcasts. Nor do they object at night when they are sent back to bed to observe the 10 p.m. curfew. Even when the entire population (militia) is assembled in the streets, outfitted with guns and gas masks, for the purpose of hating the enemy, nobody protests. Orders are orders. Life is life. Quemoy is Quemoy.

"Do you like the rules?" "We do what we're told." "But do you like the rules?" "We do what we're told." The settlement on Quemoy Island did not start out this way. On the contrary, the modern society began, 23 years ago, with all the best intentions, as a sort of brave little frontier of liberty. When Communist forces captured mainland China in 1949, some two million refugees (called Nationalists) fled to a number of islands in the Formosa Straits. A provisional capital was established on Taiwan, the largest island, 90 miles east of the mainland. And military defenses were also set up on some of the smaller, closer land areas. Because of its irritating proximity to Communist territory (a few thousand meters) Quemoy Island (the Chinese call it Kinmen) became one of the most famous, most fantastic front lines of the Cold War.

Communist forces vowed to smash Quemoy. Nationalist defenders promised to hold the ground. And the world watched the fascinating standoff for more than a decade. Seven thousand Red prisoners were captured during one battle in late 1949. Airplane flights were frequent during the early 1950s. And in 1960, on the occasion of Dwight Eisenhower's visit to Taiwan, Communist gunners fired, by Nationalist reckoning, the most intensive artillery barrage in the history of war—a reported 174,754 shells which in two withering days killed an estimated 28 civilians.

For most of the early years, the world tended to side with the Quemoy defenders. The islanders were, after all, outnumbered about 7,000 to one. Besides, observers felt that having lost all of China the Nationalists were entitled to a few scrub islets. The United States extended the largest hand of sympathy and friendship, contributing nearly $4 billion in military and economic aid to Taiwan through 1965.

Naturally, Quemoy, as Taiwan itself, began to prosper. Some 14 million trees were planted on the island to turn desert scrub into tropical vegetation. Bunkers were extended to create an underground fortress (some 1,000 workers toiled for six months just to carve one subterranean theater from inside a mountain). Tough rules and regulations (nobody is allowed to wear long hair) were established by successive military governors to promote common goals among Quemoy's 80,000 military and 31,000 civilians. And in time the island was made both lovely and lethal.

But somewhere along the way, the island was also made something else, something terrible. As the Cold War thawed, as new world realities eclipsed old world rigidities, and as the Nationalist Chinese refused to accept the realignment, Quemoy ceased to be a brave little frontier of liberty and became instead, a stubborn, scary, militaristic community in which, like 1984, War is Peace.

"The son of a bitches are moving along the beach." He watches them intently, frowning, grunting. "You know," he says, shaking his head, "nobody on Quemoy will be safe until we kill every last one of those Communist son of a bitches."

Today Quemoy island is little more than an incredible sandbox model of "The War With The Communists" that most leaders still insist is inevitable. (The official Nationalist policy, President Chiang Kai-shek says repeatedly, is to "overthrow the totalitarianism, despotic regime of the Chinese Communists.") Quemoy's 175 square kilometers of land have been dug out, covered over, fenced off, reinforced and repopulated according to 23 years of some of the most hard-headed monotonous strategic planning of the century. The place is nothing short of a mock-up of Armageddon. It's like a monument built to the first man to ever decorate a pillbox. The guns gleam with fresh paint, if not use; the walls of the caves are never dusty; one gets the impression that every tree leaf is present and accounted for.

"When it comes," says the army officer, "this whole island will light up with our guns. The earth will part, the fields will open and all the invaders will die."

Combat, the talk of combat, and in some cases even the hope of combat, is the way of life here now. Everything else, including freedom, is subordinated to the goals of military triumph. Service personnel spend up to a year's duty here (without families) repeating the dreary war drills. And the luckless civilians are in it for the duration. "All our civilians," says a Nationalist colonel, "are soldiers as well. We give them guns and show them how to use them. Several times a year we call up the militia for retraining. Everybody above the age of 15 is expected to join with the regular forces and fight to the death when the time comes."

The "time," of course, may never come. Quemoy's 23-year war with the mainland, though severe at first, has since been diluted to mere mockery. Red forces have not attempted to invade Quemoy for almost a decade. No planes have attacked for about as long. And since 1960 both sides have adhered to a queer agreement which restricts the artillery "war" to odd-numbered days. What's more, even the shells that are

But though nobody gets killed today on this play-war island, there remains an objectionable form of human suffering just the same. The Nationalists refuse to relax their military guard, and since that guard depends on the cooperation of the civilian population, the Nationalists also refuse to relax their hold on the people. Military law remains supreme and unchallenged. The leaders follow the Orwellian fantasy: Freedom is Slavery. And the population has accepted the figment as truth.

From birth, Quemoy islanders live under hard (but not necessarily harsh) control. School children must wear crew cuts, must dress in a semi-uniform, must pass every course, must respect all teachers, and must not date until the late teens. Later on, as adults, the islanders are not allowed to be unemployed, not allowed multiple political parties, not allowed to vote for national leaders (Taiwan has never held a national election) and, as an example of khaki morality, not allowed to litter—every day the islanders sweep the streets and the roads, even the gravel walkways of everything including pine needles and leaves.

The austerity is not totally oppressive. And, in fact, military occupation has benefited Quemoy in many ways. The place today is perhaps the most organized carefully planned, orderly ("We have a jail but nobody is ever in it") and advanced island of its size in the world. Illiteracy is being wiped out, hospitals are excellent, land reform is complete. "I remember when I came here in 1950," says an army spokesman, "everybody was hungry and ragged. Today? Look around. Poverty is almost illegal now. No. You won't find many of them complaining about their life."

No. To be sure. You won't find many of them complaining here. They do what they are told. They obey without question. For nearly a quarter of a century the people of Quemoy have never known a day without 18 hours of loudspeaker propaganda, they have never spent a night on the town after the 10 p.m. curfew, they have never seen their land without soldiers, never visited their beaches for the mines, never had the right to give peace a chance. Yet. You won't find many of them complaining. It's always 1984 here. Big Brother is watching.

Skill in cookery came late in man's development, according to Leopold and Ardrey. In the 2.6 million years of his anthropological history there are no indications of the regular use of fire by man until about 40,000 years ago.

The agricultural revolution began about 10,000 years ago with the domestication of food-producing plants as well as livestock.

It led in time to the industrial revolution, the technological revolution, and to our present condition.

Muscle shortage

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Mussel fishermen have fallen on hard times in the Tennessee Valley area. During the 1960s, the industry dwindled from a $1.2 million enterprise to about $200,000.

The TVA says that in 1971, mussel shells, sold mainly to the Japanese for use in the cultured pearl industry, totaled only 150 tons harvested at about $25,000. Round chips from the shells are placed in living oysters and the oysters coat the chips with a layer of pearl.

Modern Man Owes His Present Condition Largely To Cookery

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—
 Modern man owes his present condition largely to cookery.

For millions of years our primitive ancestors were denied full use of many plant foods that might have speeded humanity's push into the future. So, perforce, early man had to rely chiefly on the meat of wild animals to keep them alive. This delayed for hundreds of thousands of years the agricultural revolution which ultimately enabled mankind to dominate the earth and, incidentally, to despoil large parts of it.

For this the blame, or credit, goes to evolution. It supplied hosts of plant species with chemical toxins which, though they did nothing for the plants' own life processes, helped them to fight off predators from which they could not flee.

The Predators
 Among these predators were insects, microorganisms, nematodes, grazing animals and man.

The story of how man finally managed to exploit plants for food, and thus brought on the agricultural revolution, has been outlined in Science magazine by A. Carl Leopold of

Purdue University and Robert Ardrey of Rome, author of "The Social Contract."

Plants endowed by nature with chemical defenses in some degree include members of the beet, bean, pea, tomato, and cabbage clans; rhubarb, yams, manioc, and many kinds of flowers.

But evolution also supplied some predators with built-in ways of circumventing and even making use of plant poisons for their own special purposes.

The Monarch butterfly, for example, sequesters poisons which it acquires from plants and uses them to repel birds that prey on butterflies.

Cooking Kills Toxins
 Man, however, had to invent another kind of adaptation to vegetable toxins which was cultural rather than physiological. What he invented, in the course of many thousands of years, were artificial ways of making fire and the use of fire in cookery.

Village Board Rejects Mobile Home Project

The South Jacksonville Village Board Thursday night voted to accept a plan commission recommendation to deny a special use permit for a mobile home development to Lowell DeLong.

The three to two vote came after no debate and a short statement by board member Ralph Sullivan in favor of allowing the permit. Voting with the majority were Cecil Ford, Paul Laughary and Robert Minor; Harold O'Daffer and Sullivan voted no.

After the regular business had been disposed of, DeLong resubmitted his plans and asked for a second hearing on the matter. "I'm just giving them another chance," DeLong said after the meeting.

DeLong's move angered those at the meeting who had opposed the mobile home project at the plans commission meeting last week. After being told by Larry Lynn, village attorney, that DeLong could submit the matter as often as he pleased, J. W. Smith said there should be an ordinance stopping such practices.

James Holtschlag, an opponent of the development, drew a heated response from Mayor William F. Fanning when he asked when the next election was. Fanning, who favors DeLong's proposal, said "I've served over 30 years ... I'm big enough so that I stand up absolutely for what I think."

Fanning said after the meeting that he would like to see the project completed because of the financial benefits the village would receive. "We have a $665,000 revenue bond issue on our water plant. The population has to grow to pay it off," he said.

DeLong's plans call for a 236-place mobile home development on a 22.4 acre site at the corner of Greenwood and Lincoln, across from Diamond Grove cemetery.

The plans commission, which Fanning is a member of, will meet again and make a recommendation to the board. The vote might be different next time though, since there is a vacancy, caused by the resignation of Leo Campbell, to be filled.

Fanning said he would have the vacancy filled before the next board meeting. Should that member vote for the development, a 3-3 deadlock could result with Fanning casting the deciding vote. The board must approve Fanning's appointment, however.

There is also a vacancy on the plans commission created by the resignation of Edgar Bobb. Bobb, the former village engineer and now a partner in DeVore-Bobb and Associates, is working for DeLong on the mobile home project.

Residents living near the proposed development site contend that their property values would decline if the project is completed. Holtschlag said after the meeting that the opposition will continue its efforts.

In other action, the board accepted the bid of Schmitt Chevrolet of $3,622.99 for a new police car. Schmitt's bid was the only one received. Ford and Plymouth dealers said they could no longer order 1972 cars.

The village has borrowed about $78,000 from the Farmers State Bank for seven and a half years at 4.5 per cent interest. The money is the village share needed to secure a state-federal grant to pay for a sewage treatment plant project.

Bobb said the board should know the status of its grant application by the end of July.

Remove 16 Classes From Master List

Listings of six classes removed from the 1972-73 master schedule for Turner Junior High and ten classes removed from the 1972-73 master schedule for Jacksonville High School were announced by Dr. Clifford Crone, superintendent of School District 117.

The classes which will not be scheduled at Turner include one class of ninth grade agriculture, one ninth grade home economics class each semester, and eighth grade junior museum and elementary school science and junior museum.

The junior museum and elementary science supervision equate to four classes and release faculty time for four other classes.

School officials at Turner will reschedule pupils registered for these classes into study hall or an alternate class. They will contact those students for whom consultation on change of program is necessary.

At High School the ten classes canceled are third year German, first year German, one two-year algebra class, one mathematics 301 (individualized math) class, one drama class, one drama workshop class, one speech communications class, one speech interpretations class, and two sophomore remedial English classes.

Students registered for any of these classes are asked to contact the High School guidance office regarding revision of their individual schedules if they have not already been called by school officials. High School Principal Bernard Gregory said that guidance counselors have begun contacting students affected by the changes in the master schedule. The telephone number of the High School is 243-4384.

Mandate by Board
School Superintendent Dr. Clifford W. Crone explained that due to increased secondary school enrollment and increased registrations, maintenance of these classes in the master schedules of Turner Junior High and Jacksonville High School would require three additional teachers and an increase in a part-time position.

The Board of Education at its last meeting did not authorize employment of additional personnel.

Dr. Crone said that following the Board decision to avoid the expense of added faculty positions the central office and secondary school administration had reviewed master schedules and weighed alternatives carefully in the action to delete the previously listed courses, most of which are electives.

Area Delegates Take Girl's State Offices

Morgan County State's Attorney Richard Norris administered oaths of office during the induction of members of the General Assembly Thursday evening at Illinois Girl's State. The week-long governmental study is sponsored by the State Department of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Among the delegates sworn into office were three area girls, Carol Twenhafel of Waverly, senator, Sandra Boehs of Chapin and Jennifer Niehaus of Jacksonville, both representatives.

Another area girl, Betty Oxley of Franklin, is serving as judge of election.

During the opening session of the house of representatives at the Thursday assembly on the MacMurray campus, house officers were elected. Among them were Karen Manken, speaker of the house; Connie Bower, clerk; Elizabeth Ogilvie, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Richard Ogilvie, page; and Cathy Metke, chaplain.

Several bills were introduced before the house during a mock session of the legislature. Some of the resolutions presented were for the modification of the dress code governing delegates at Illinois Girl's State, a limitation set on the money spent for campaigning, more day care centers and the prohibition of non-returnable bottles.

A resolution was passed setting a joint session of the general assembly Saturday at 7:30 p.m. At this time State officials will be inaugurated and the Girl's State governor will speak.

Following induction ceremonies, candidates for county and state offices were introduced. Two area nominees are Donna Jackson of Roodhouse, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Maria Gregory of Winchester, candidate for comptroller. The position of comptroller has in the past come under the title of auditor of public accounts.

Announcement was made of the veterans' crafts which go on sale Friday at the campus center. These articles are made by handicapped veterans and sold by Auxiliary members. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Skinner of the Jacksonville American Legion Post and Unit 279 are in charge of the local display. Mrs. Skinner is the Department American Legion Auxiliary Veterans' Craft chairman.

Friday's activities include the morning primary election and campaign night and party conventions. The general election will be held Saturday morning.

He was married at Shipman, Ill. Sept. 11, 1961 to Clara McCoy. She survives with two children, Tamula Sue and Lyle, Jr., both at home. Also surviving is his stepfather, Robert Easley, Mt. Sterling and a half brother and half sister, Robert Welty and Clarice Welty, both of West Plains, and grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Avery, Mt. Sterling.

Pollution Board Funding Bill Passes Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate approved Thursday a $140,000 emergency fund for operating the Illinois Pollution Control Board until July 1. The bill now goes back to the House.

The board has requested a $350,000 appropriation for court reporting but its request was slashed under Senate criticism. Sen. Robert Cherry, D-Chicago, called the board "one of the poorest administered agencies in the state."

Cherry, an assistant majority leader, said the board's expenses for reporting hearings were running at an average of $110 day, an expense he termed "almost unbelievable."

But Cherry relented Thursday, urging that the board be supported as a necessary agent to police pollution violators. The bill received only the 30 votes needed for passage back to the House.

Sen. Edward McBroom, R-Kankakee, the Senate sponsor of the bill, said David Currie, chairman of the board, was strongly denounced at a Senate Appropriations Committee meeting by Cherry.

Urging support of the appropriation, McBroom said Currie, "would have to be a pretty stupid man not to know what they were talking about," and would tighten administration.

Other senators attacked the board's operating methods. Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield and Sen. Clifford Latherow, R-Carthage, said the board files charges and puts the burden on the accused to show his innocence.

"I think it is off base," said Latherow. "If a man commits murder, we look for him. Here, they cite a man and he has to prove he is innocent."

"Right off the bat," said Horsley, "You are told to plead guilty or we will have a hearing and we'll tell you what you're going to do. That's why they have so many hearings. You do not have due process."

Sen. Hudson Sours, R-Peoria, said "due process has degenerated. All economic pressures are executed on some poor devil who may never have violated the law." He voted present.

Sparks House Uproar

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House refused to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution Thursday after a boisterous, arm-waving legislative battle.

After the measure fell seven votes short of approval, ERA sponsors barely won a furious fight to keep it alive.

The hour-long debate over the one-sentence ban on all forms of sex discrimination was one of the most heated of the last year in the General Assembly. One member collapsed and was taken to a hospital minutes after the close of the action.

Rep. Corneal Davis, D-Chicago, challenged other members to let the female sponsors of the measure keep it alive in the waning days of the legislative session.

"Why have we been so hostile to the sponsors of this bill?" Davis asked. "Why don't we give them the same privileges we give ourselves?"

"Because they're women!" Rep. Thomas J. Hanahan, D-McHenry, a leader of the opposition to the ERA roared, shaking a fist in the air.

At that the small wooden galleries packed with feminists erupted in shouting of football grandstand intensity.

In the verbal battle leading to the vote, Majority Leader Henry J. Hyde, R-Chicago, told the House that if he voted "for this, I'd feel an immediate need to take a shower."

Rep. Robert E. Mann, D-Chicago, rebuked his colleagues for "the almost hysterical fear that is gripping the male members of this House."

"This bill will not prescribe that we all must undergo a unisex operation," Mann added. He said some members fought the ERA because of their "peculiar hangups."

Rep. George "Ray" Hudson, R-Hinsdale, scorned feminists for calling the ERA "a magic elixir for the instant relief of sex discrimination."

Hanahan, a leading labor union spokesman in the General Assembly and a chief opponent of the ERA, argued that approval of the measure would doom on-the-job protection legislation won for women by the AFL-CIO.

"The women who are home wiping the noses of your children, the women who are actually working in the factories—they don't want to compete with some of the types of women I've seen around here today," Hanahan said.

Hissing and booing rained down from the galleries.

Black members made a special plea for ERA votes.

"In every movement battling poverty and oppression, there we find the woman" Rep. Raymond Ewell, D-Chicago, said. Rep. Harold Washington, D-Chicago, declared that "this is the time for the male chauvinist to look into his heart."

Rep. Webster Borchers, R-Decatur, warned that approval of the ERA could mean a flood of women into the army, which he said would ruin its quality.

"They cannot act as fast as a man," Borchers said. "They cannot take a machinegun and operate it as fast as a man. They cannot take a bayonet and use it like a man."

At the close of the debate, the vote stood at 82-76, with nine members voting present. It takes 80 votes to pass.

Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, a co-sponsor, then asked to have the resolution placed on the order of postponed consideration, which would keep it alive for another vote before the close of the session.

In a roll call vote on the request, which ordinarily "is granted as a matter of course," Mrs. Dyer and her co-sponsor, Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, received 91 votes, two more than needed.

Rep. Peter Miller, R-Chicago, pleaded to grant Mrs. Dyer's request, although he said that the ERA was "another one of those things that the liberals want that will ruin the fiber of America."

"Upon realizing that the ERA was to remain alive, Hanahan paced up and down the center aisle of the House chamber shaking his fist. Hyde at first called out angrily to Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest.

The left Republican leader then shook the stem of his microphone three times angrily, dropped into his chair and bit furiously on the tip of a cigar.

Only minutes later, Rep. Elmo "Mac" McClain, D-Quincy, collapsed on the floor and was quickly taken to a hospital. His condition was not learned immediately.

House OKs Big Part Of Education Budget

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A large chunk of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's higher education budget for the next fiscal year breezed past the Illinois House Thursday, including nearly $130 million for Southern Illinois University.

The House also approved $108 million to finance universities under the jurisdiction of the state board of governors and $216 million for the junior college board.

The lower chamber must still vote on the $281 million budget for the University of Illinois campuses in Champaign and Chicago. In all, Ogilvie had asked for $967.3 million to finance colleges and universities over the fiscal year beginning next month.

The Ogilvie recommendations were slashed by about $45 million by the House Appropriations Committee last month, but the three bills passed Thursday were not changed on the floor.

The $130 million appropriation for Southern Illinois University includes $303,000 for preliminary work for a law school on the Carbondale campus.

The law school had been strongly opposed by some Republicans in committee, but an attempt was beaten back to eliminate the appropriation. Southern Illinois also received money to construct new facilities for its campus police force, a project criticized by some Republicans.

The SIU money bill, actually was increased in the appropriations committee by nearly $2 million with the bulk of the increase going for construction of a new facility for the university's vocation education institute.

David R. Derge, president at SIU in Carbondale, testified before the committee that present facilities for the vocational training program were inadequate and have not met "minimum health and safety standards."

The junior college appropriation was approved 141-4 with no debate. Ogilvie had recommended $220 million, but lost $3.7 million in the appropriations committee. Of that cut, $3 million was in capital improvements.

The board of governors had requested $119 million, but saw $10 million slashed in the appropriations committee.

The board of governors has jurisdiction over Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois and Northwestern Illinois Universities and the two newest additions to the system—Chicago State and Governor's State Universities.

Mac McClain Suffers Attack On House Floor

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Rep. Elmo McClain, D-Quincy, collapsed and was rushed to a hospital Thursday minutes after he cast his vote on the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

McClain, 55, who is serving his fifth term in the House, was admitted to the coronary unit of St. John's Hospital for observation. A hospital spokesman said he is in fair condition, but would not reveal whether McClain had suffered a heart attack.

The representative's wife, Margaret, said in a telephone interview from Quincy that her husband has no history of heart trouble.

Rep. Thaddeus Lechowicz, D-Chicago, who sits near McClain on the House floor, said that the Quincy Democrat collapsed and claimed chest pains.

Lucille Ramshaw, the state-house resident nurse, rushed into the chamber and administered oxygen to McClain. Rep. Bruce Douglas, D-Chicago, who is a doctor, also went to McClain's side as he lay stretched out on two chairs.

"He kept on saying that he was all right," said Mrs. Ramshaw.

Mrs. McClain said that her husband had recently been afflicted by angina pectoris—described by Mrs. Ramshaw as being muscle spasms in the chest area, but not related to the heart.

McClain is the athletic director and baseball coach at Christian Brothers High School in Quincy. He has served as a government teacher and basketball coach for 19 years.
